Over 10-hour meeting of Corps Commanders ends

No information on talks outcome yet; Army chief plans to visit Leh this week; Chinese commander too died in the June 15 face-off

MAYANK SINGH AND PUSHKAR BANAKAR @ New Delhi

A marathon meeting of Corps Commanders of India and China got wrapped up late on Monday night, indicating the intricacies involved in the border stand-off along the Line of Actual Control (LAC). There was no immediate word on its outcome though. Also, the Indian Army decided to harden its stance on deployments along the LAC in Eastern Ladakh.

"The over 10-hour meeting ended around 10 pm," a senior officer informed. The Army confirmed that Lt General Harinder Singh, head of Leh-based 14 Corps, held his second round of talks with Major General Lin Liu, commander of the People's Liberation Army in South Xinjiang region.

The meeting is important as tensions along the border have soared after the June 15 attack on Indian soldiers by Chinese troops in the Galwan Valley leading to casualties on both sides.

Sources said that the Army is also preparing to strengthen its defences, with senior officers from the Operations Branch visiting Leh in quick succession. Army Chief General M M Naravane is likely to make a trip to Leh next week and take stock of the situation on the ground, said another source.

All seven Army commanders have gathered in Delhi for the Annual Army Commanders Conference in which the standoff was discussed on Monday. It is expected to be taken up again on Tuesday in the presence of the Army Chief as also the vice chief.

Troops of 3 Division of the Army are directly handling the stand-off. They are strongly supported by troops of two other divisions. Also, the Indo Tibetan Border Police (ITBP) has been put on standby, informed sources.

While India has been open about its fatality in the deadly fight on June 15, China continues to play ostrich. Chinese foreign ministry spokesperson Zhao Lijian on Monday said he had no information about the Chinese casualties, a day after Union minister and former Army Chief General V K Singh revealed that at least 40 Chinese soldiers were killed. India declared the death of its 20 soldiers, including the commanding officer of its local unit, and injuries to around 70 others.

Meanwhile, sources said that External Affairs Minister S Jaishankar also told the all-party meeting on Friday that a Chinese commander had been killed in the face-off. The meeting was also told that Colonel B Santosh Babu had sustained head injuries and was killed in action. Zhao, however, reiterated that China and India are in communication with each other to resolve the situation on the ground through diplomatic and military channels.

Manmohan assails Modi, Nadda hits back at ex-PM

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

FORMER prime minister Manmohan Singh on Monday advised his successor Narendra Modi to always be mindful of the implications of his words in the Chinese context, drawing a sharp retort from BJP chief J P Nadda. Singh told Modi that China should not be allowed to use his words as a vindication of their position. Congress leader Rahul Gandhi, too, wondered why China was praising the PM.

Singh's remarks came after the PM, during an all-party meeting last week — following the killing of 20 Indian soldiers by Chinese troops in Galwan in Ladakh on June 15 — said, "Neither has anyone entered Indian territory, nor is anyone present in Indian territory currently, and nor is any Indian post captured."

Singh pressed on, saying: "We remind the government that disinformation is no substitute for diplomacy or decisive leadership. The truth cannot be suppressed by having pliant allies spout comforting but false statements."

However, Nadda pounced on Singh, saying that it was under his watch that China illegally occupied vast tracts of land, besides launching not less than 600 incursions across the Line of Actual Control (LAC). "Dear Dr. Singh and Congress Party, Please stop insulting our forces repeatedly, questioning their valour. You did this post the air xtrikes (Balakot) and surgical strikes. Please understand the true meaning of national unity, especially in such times. It's never too late to improve," Nadda tweeted.

Rahul Gandhi added to the Twitter war, saying: "China killed our soldiers. China took our land. Then, why is China praising Mr Modi during this conflict." He tagged a news report in the Chinese media that lauded Modi's concluding address at an all-party meeting on the Ladakh situation.

IT'S TIME FOR RIC DIPLOMACY

The next diplomatic push could come from the virtual Russia, India, China (RIC) foreign ministers' conference that begins today. External Affairs Minister S Jaishankar was not keen on sharing space with his Chinese counterpart Wang Yi, but was persuaded by Russia to relent.

Russia has taken a cautious and measured approach to the LAC situation and urged both sides to resolve disputes through dialogue | P9

K'taka to seal down hotspot clusters

ANUSHA RAVI @Bengaluru

FOLLOWING a spike in Covid-19 cases, especially in marketplaces and wards attached to marketplaces, the Karnataka government has decided to seal down hotspot clusters and their adjoining streets.

Chief Minister B S Yediyurappa on Monday held an emergency meeting to tackle the spike in cases across the state, especially Bengaluru, where a decision was taken to seal Kalasipalya, KR Market, Chamarajpet and Chickpet till July 1. Yediyurappa is learnt to have pushed for stricter lockdown in clusters but without adversely impacting economic activities.

"The number of cases is increasing at an alarming rate in Bengaluru. Stringent lockdown measures need to be implemented. Covid-19 should be contained without affecting the economic activity," Yediyurappa is said to have told the officials.

Currently, the administration is sealing down just the house where a Covid case is reported. But at the meeting, it was decided to completely seal down even adjoining roads in BBMP wards that have reported more than three cases.

At present, Siddapura, VV Puram, Vidyaranyapura, Kalasipalaya and areas around Dharmaraya Temple are prone to multiple cases of Covid-19. A similar strategy will be followed in districts like Yadgir, Ballari and Kalaburagi, where there is a spurt of cases, government sources said.

Realty dawns as revenues from sector grow

RAMU PATIL @Bengaluru

THERE is no sign of the Covid-19 curve flattening anytime soon, but at the same time the economy that had taken a body blow due to the lockdown is showing strong indications of bouncing back.

The state's revenues from the real estate sector, which had hit rock bottom in the beginning of the financial year, are steadily increasing over the last few weeks.

The sub-registrar's offices started functioning from April 24, and that month, the Stamps and Registration Department raised just ₹29 crore from registration of properties, which is abysmal compared to ₹679 crore revenue for the corresponding period last year. It started recovering in May this year, when the revenues went up to ₹397 crore, but that too was much less compared to ₹1,058 crore raised during the same period last year.

Department sources said that revenue generation from registration of properties picked up pace in the first half of this month (June). Up to June 19, the revenue collection from registration of over 1.13 lakh documents stood at ₹477.76 crore. This was slightly better than the number of documents registered and revenue generated in the corresponding period in 2019-20, or the average of last three years. P3

MNREGA RUSH: GOVT TO FIND GRADS JOBS

ASHWINI M SRIPAD @ Bengaluru

WITH desperate graduates, postgraduates and skilled workers, for lack of suitable employment, enrolling themselves under the bread-and-butter MNREGA scheme in droves, the state government is coming to their rescue by finding them jobs based on their skills by conducting job fairs and directing them to the Skill Development Department for better placement.

> They (workers) can register through the Kayaka Mitra mobile app, while many labour organisations too are helping them enrol under MNREGA
> LK Ateeq, Principal Secretary RDPR Department

As the lockdown started taking effect, tens of thousands of migrant workers returned to their villages and registered themselves under the Mahatma Gandhi National Rural Employment Guarantee Act. Over the last two-and-a-half months of this fiscal, 2.23 lakh new MNREGA job cards have been issued, while during the same period last year, 78,454 people had registered under the scheme, which is almost a three-fold increase in registrations.

This year, the state government has targeted to reach 13 crore man-days, for which Rs 6,315.79 crore has been allocated, including the Central government's share. Of the 13 crore man-days (100 days for one worker), the state has already crossed 3.3 crore man-days. Also, Rs 275 per day that the Karnataka government pays is more than what is assigned in neighbouring Andhra Pradesh, Telangana and Tamil Nadu. The only exception being Kerala, which pays more than Karnataka.

Officials of the Rural Development and Panchayat Raj (RDPR) Department had not expected this surge in registrations, but are trying to help the workers. "They can register through the Kayaka Mitra mobile app, while many labour organisations too are helping them enrol under MNREGA," RDPR Principal Secretary LK Ateeq told The New Indian Express.

Transporters hit as fuel cost goes North, jacks up freight rates

JONATHAN ANANDA @New Delhi

MONDAY marked the sixteenth straight day of fuel price hikes for Indian consumers, petrol and diesel rates having surged by a record ₹8.30 and ₹9.46 per litre respectively in little over a fortnight. The day's diesel prices reached yet another all-time high — ₹78.85 per litre in New Delhi — while petrol was being sold just shy of the ₹80 per litre mark at ₹79.56.

This steep rise is already having a marked impact on the cost of road freight transport. According to S P Singh, senior fellow at the Indian Foundation of Transport Research and Training (IFTRT), truck rental rates have increased by as much as 10-12 per cent over the fortnight beginning June 7.

"The impact of the fuel price hikes has been observed on trunk routes pan-India," he said, adding that freight costs had already been rising over the summer. "Very low demand meant transporters weren't able to get assured return loads and tried to protect their margins," he noted.

Livelihood of 20 crore tied to the sector

India's fleet of commercial trucks currently stands at over one crore light, medium and heavy-duty trucks. Around 20 crore people are dependent on it, according to All India Motor Transport Congress

Transporters say, however, that the increase in freight prices has been "nowhere close" to the over 20 per cent rise in diesel rates seen over the summer in places like Delhi.

"We are in a position where we cannot pass on the full impact of the fuel hike to consumers. Prices are a factor of demand and supply, and both remain very low," said Naveen Kumar Gupta, secretary general, All India Motor Transport Congress. He also pointed out that since fuel prices are revised daily, it was very difficult to factor in these changes for trips that generally last over several days.

"Most transporters are currently running on huge losses and over 60 per cent of the fleet remains idle," Gupta said. Singh agreed: "Current fleet utilisation is only at around 30-35 per cent."

Around 20 crore people are dependent on the commercial truck sector. "Even if we do pass on the entire impact, these 20 crore people will still be affected, since prices of food and other articles on the ground will also increase," Gupta pointed out. CONTINUED ON: P13

Bihar flood threat as Nepal stops repair of embankment

RAJESH KUMAR THAKUR @Patna

THE Nepal government has blocked Bihar officials from carrying out repair works on a section of the Gandak embankment that sits on a piece of no man's land along the India-Nepal border. Barricades have been put up there to prevent the movement of men, materials and machinery from the Indian side.

Sources said that the repair work, being carried out by Bihar's Water Resource Department, has been going on for a long time. But on June 15, the Nepal Armed Border Force (NABF) reached the spot and halted the work. The district administration promptly alerted the state government.

Bihar Water Resource Minister Sanjay Kumar Jha on Monday confirmed the development.

"This is for the first time that Nepal has resorted to an act putting a barrier to stop movement of material, men and machinery from the Indian side," Jha said, adding that the Ministry of External Affairs has been apprised of the situation.

"The Gandak Barrage has 36 gates, half of which fall on our side. Repair of these has been completed by our engineers. However, when we tried to cross over to the other side for doing the needful for the remaining 18 gates, maintenance of which is carried out by us, we found the barricades," Jha said.

Find solution for online classes, HC tells State

Children being denied Right to Education, court observes

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

THE Karnataka High Court on Monday asked the State government to find a solution to the situation arising from the ban on online classes in the State.

A division bench of Chief Justice Abhay Shreeniwas Oka and Justice Nataraj Rangaswamy issued this direction after hearing a public interest litigation petition filed by Anumitha Sharma and several others. The petitioners have challenged the ban from LKG to class 5 in the State.

The registry was directed to club this petition with two other petitions filed by educational institutions challenging the ban.

In the notice issued on June 11, the State government had directed that schools (including private unaided and schools affiliated to CBSE and ICSE) cannot provide online education for students up to Class 5, and if they are doing so to immediately cease such online classes.

During the hearing, the court observed that if regular classes cannot be conducted, whether it will mean denying the children right to education in view of Article 21-A of the Constitution. "Can't the online classes be permitted for a few hours? Some solution has to be found out. Online is limited to cities, what about rural areas?" the bench asked the government.

The counsel of one of the petitioners argued that online classes for up to Class 5 is unconstitutional.

No guidelines are framed for Class 6 and above. "In April, the State government allowed online classes, but in June it suddenly banned it. The schools had made many arrangements and now all that is undone," he said.

VIEWS OF PARENTS EXTRACTED FROM THE PETITION

In view of the rapidly increasing Covid-19 cases in the country, it may be impossible to resume regular classes in schools in the near future. Online teaching will remain the only option for continuing education and overall development of children

As students are left with no means of access to education due to the pandemic, education has come to a standstill, with no resumption in sight, infringing on their fundamental right to education

IISc's nanotech to fight against hardy bacteria

PEARL MARIA D'SOUZA
@Bengaluru

OVER the years, studies have shown that overuse of antibiotics made bacteria adapt and become resistant. To ensure that doesn't happen, researchers from Indian Institute of Science (IISc) have devised a nanomaterial which mimics the enzyme phospholipase and ruptures the membrane, rendering the bacteria useless. It also diminishes their resistance-building capacity, according to researchers.

Kapudeep Karmakar, a former PhD student at Department of Microbiology and Cell Biology (MCB) and the joint first author on this paper, said that the nanomaterial called nanozymes, breaks the bond that holds the two-layered membrane of the bacteria, making it vulnerable to drugs and thereby compromising its resistance-building capability.

The research team from Department of Inorganic and Physical Chemistry (IPC) and MCB have successfully tested the nanozyme on a range of human pathogens.

This finding has a number of uses, from deactivating bacteria, to coating invasive instruments such as catheters, thereby reducing the risk of urinary tract infection. Furthermore in the future, when coated to 'bio-compatible agents', it can help create a potent antibiotic nanozyme.

BDA to take back Asaram Trust site

S LALITHA @Bengaluru

THE Bangalore Development Authority (BDA) has decided to terminate the lease of the sprawling Community Amenity (CA) site allotted to a trust run by jailed godman Asaram in the pricey Banashankari IInd Stage.

At present, an ayurvedic pharmacy is functioning out of the 6,000-sqft site that was leased to the Ahmedabad-based Sant Shri Asaramji Trust, for 30 years in 2004.

Asaram

The estimated market value of the site is around Rs 4.2 crore, a BDA official said, adding that the BDA Board on Friday approved the decision to terminate the lease.

"Eviction notice would be issued shortly to the Trust. The site had been allotted only for social activities and a religious institution or ashram is acceptable. However, it is also carrying out commercial activity by selling ayurvedic medicines. Due to this violation, it has been decided to terminate the contract," the BDA source said.

Activist Saidatta, who first lodged a complaint with the BDA regarding the violations, alleged that the BBMP had inspected the pharmacy and ordered its closure a decade ago for non-possession of licence but the powerful Trust managed to reopen it.

He said the BDA must immediately take possession of site, which was allotted to Asaram by the then chief minister N Dharam Singh.

"Asaram is a convicted criminal under the Indian Penal Code and the POCSO Act. Why should the BDA be speaking of taking the legal route in his case? They need to take ownership of the property immediately," he said.

It is not clear if the BDA would return a portion of the money to the Trust since the contract will be terminated midway. BDA Commissioner H R Mahadev reserved comment on the issue until the proceedings of the board meeting were made public.

After three months, Minto Eye Hospital resumes service

IFFATH FATHIMA @ Bengaluru

AFTER three months, Minto Ophthalmic Hospital opened its gates to patients on Monday. Due to the ongoing pandemic, hospitals under Bangalore Medical College Research Institute (BMCRI) were shut as they were not treating non-Covid ailments, causing hardships for the economically weaker sections of society.

Dr CR Jayanthi, Director and Dean of BMCRI said, "As underprivileged patients were suffering because of the halt in non-Covid treatments, we decided to resume services. In the first phase, we have opened Minto Eye Hospital out patient department. In the second phase, we will open Victoria Hospital for OPD, dermatology, orthopaedic and ENT. However, no surgeries will be performed."

On Monday, 40 patients visited Minto Ophthalmic Hospital. The staff has ensured that all precautionary measures are in place. It takes a little longer for the doctor to attend as after one patient leaves, the place is sanitised before allowing the next patient.

Transparent sheet in devices | EXPRESS

Dr Sujatha Rathod, Director of Minto Eye Hospital said, "Now, we will take more time to see one patient. However, we need to take utmost care as in this discipline, we have to come in close contact with patients. Also, conjunctival tears can carry the virus. We are opening the non-Covid services at a time when cases are only going up by thousands every day."

This apart, Dr Sujatha pointed out that the eye-checking devices have transparent sheets between them to reduce contact with patients. Right now, Minto Eye Hospital has 300 beds among which 100 are designated for Covid patients, although they have no patients now.

Precautionary measures taken
- Patient is first screened at entrance
- Details of patient are collected
- Symptoms of patient will be noted
- Patient will be asked if he/she is from containment zones
- If Covid symptoms are detected, they will be sent to Victoria Hospital for testing

Daily Starscope

PETER VIDAL

23rd June: I've recently been looking at the astrology of the ancient Maya, who flourished in Mexico up to a thousand years ago. The reason I'm looking at this now is because of their predictions that the world entered a completely new phase back in 2012. I don't take it literally, but I love prophecies like this. They never cease to intrigue me.

ARIES (Mar 21 - Apr. 20)
The dominant mood of the day is still somewhat emotional, and your nesting instinct may be strong. However, your mood is about to change quite substantially so, please realise that, what seems permanent today, may have completely disappeared before long.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 - May 21)
The best way to deal with family members, or with anyone you live with for that matter, is to talk to them. The more that goes unsaid, the greater the chances that you'll drift into some sort of major misunderstanding. And that would never do. Not after all you've been through!

GEMINI (May 22 - June 21)
Cash, including your need for more with the demands on your pocket, is one major issue. However, there's always a psychological dimension, and right now this includes your own need to be valued more in the future. Start by finding ways to boost your self-esteem.

CANCER (June 22 - July 23)
There is a great deal to be said for pressing ahead with all personal hopes and ambitions as fast as possible. The very best that you can hope for is that little opportunities will drop into your lap, unasked for. Your task will be to make the most of them.

LEO (July 24 - Aug. 23)
Nothing is quite as it seems, so don't worry if you can't think straight at the moment, but do try to separate fact from fantasy. This is not to say that one is better than the other, just that you should be sure in your own mind whether you're dealing with the real world or not!

VIRGO (Aug. 24 - Sept. 23)
Stress levels tend to build up, but that's not necessarily a bad thing. A love affair will work best if you understand that friendship is more important than passion. You may already sense that emotional changes are on the way, and should realise that they are to be positively welcomed.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 - Oct. 23)
In love, it looks very much as if secrecy is still the order of the day. It may be that other people are not yet ready to understand your feelings, but there could also be a slight lack of confidence on your part. Mind you, perhaps a few doubts are a good thing!

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22)
Set your sights high today and go for adventurous options. However, you should keep an eye on authority figures, including employers, who are developing strange ideas, especially if it looks as if they may pass judgment on your behaviour. You don't want to miss out!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 - Dec. 22)
Monetary rewards are no doubt overdue, but if you can possibly get financial loose ends tied up today, you'll clear the decks ready for tomorrow. What is ultimately more important, though, is recognition of your talents. It's good to have cash in your pocket, but better to feel that other people honour your achievements, however small.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)
Partnership is extremely important. This is not necessarily for any wonderfully selfless reason, but because, for sheer self-interest, you must link up with individuals who think and feel as you do. You can do without people who always criticise you, at least for now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 - Feb. 19)
The dominant daily pattern in your chart is still work, but the possible manifestations are many. Even if you're planning to put your feet up, you may find that the most fulfilling way to spend the day is performing little favours for others. It's good to do good!

PISCES (Feb. 20 - Mar 20)
There's an ongoing risk of friction at home. In the past, this has involved simple practical matters but, right now, there seems to be some emotional strain. Use the opportunity to clear the air - and reassure other people that the worst may never happen!

After facing legal hurdles to recruit engineers, state now seeks opinion of Advocate General

ASHWINI M SRIPAD
@Bengaluru

EXACTLY a year back, as many as 20,000 candidates wrote the exams for engineer posts conducted by the Public Works Department (PWD). They are yet to get their results. On the other hand, the State government, which took up steps to recruit engineers through KPSC, is facing legal hurdles. Now, the government has sought the opinion of the Advocate General.

During the previous JDS-Congress coalition government led by H D Kumaraswamy, PWD had called for 870 engineers posts in March 2019. It had issued a notification for the recruitment of 570 Assistant Engineers (AE) and 300 Junior Engineers (JE). In June 2019, exams were conducted and in July the BJP government came to power which wanted to scrap some of the decisions taken by the previous government including the PWD exams, and instead recruit engineers through KPSC. This was approved at the cabinet meeting held in November. In December, some of the candidates approached the Karnataka Administrative Tribunal (KAT).

Meanwhile, the State government had called for 925 engineers posts through KPSC in January this year. But in March, the KAT order came in favour of the candidates who wrote the exams in June 2019. It quashed the government's new proposal. But then the pandemic-lockdown began. And the candidates don't know what to do. Shashank B from Kalburgi, one of the candidates, told TNIE that they had met Chief Minister B S Yediyurappa and PWD Minister Govind Karajol many times. "Many of us, especially from North Karnataka, came to Bengaluru and stayed for two to three months to take coaching for competitive exams as an alternative. Now the job market is seeing a slump, we cannot even try anywhere else," he said.

Basavaraj from Hubballi said, "We are unemployed now. Private companies ask for experience. All our hopes are shattered." Like him, Prem S from Tumakuru too wrote exams. "Our future looks bleak, we are neither here nor there," he said.

On the other side, PWD is facing acute shortage of engineers. "Of the 1,400 junior level engineers we need, we have only 600. These engineers work on the field and play an important role. Without them we cannot take up works. The government is keen on taking trainees on honorarium," an official said.

Rajneesh Goel, Additional Chief Secretary (PWD), told TNIE that after the KAT order, the government moved the high court.

"Candidates too are planning to approach the high court," said Revanth, an aspirant.

Minister: Factories sacking workers will face action, can't shut without govt nod

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Belagavi

MINISTER for Labour and Sugar Shivaram Hebbar on Monday said that factories with more than 100 workers cannot pull down their shutters, citing lockdown losses, without bringing it to the notice of the government. Labour officials should also collect details of such factories and apprise the government, he added.

"I have received many complaints that several factories are sacking labourers after easing of the lockdown. Identify such factories and take action under the Labour Act to give justice to labourers," he told officials at a review meeting of sugar and labour departments.

"As announced by the government, Rs 5000 financial assistance is being given to each labourer. About 60,000 labourers, against a total of 85,000, have received the benefit. Officials should collect data of the remaining and extend the benefit to them," the minister said.

Stating that the department has data of only 3.34 lakh of 7.80 lakh labourers, he said data of the remaining is being collected, and Rs 1000 crore has been aside for their welfare.

Nominees of all parties enter Council unopposed

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

MEMBERS to seven vacant seats of the Karnataka Legislative Council were elected unopposed on Monday with no additional candidates in the fray. Four BJP candidates — Pratap Simha Nayak, Sunil Vallyapure, M T B Nagaraj and R Shankar — two Congress candidates — B K Hariprasad and Naseer Ahmed — and one JDS — Govinda Raju — were elected unopposed eliminating the need for voting in the biennial Council polls.

Chief Minister B S Yediyurappa has the authority to suggest names of five candidates to be nominated under the Governor quota. Legislative Assembly Secretary and Returning Officer M K Vishalakshi declared the election of the seven candidates.

INDIA-CHINA FACE-OFF

Kharge demands 'truth' about Galwan from PM

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

FORMER opposition leader Mallikarjun Kharge on Monday joined the chorus of Congress leaders in demanding that Prime Minister Narendra Modi "place the truth" before the nation about the India-China face-off at Galwan valley.

"In Galwan, Indian soldiers have been tricked by the Chinese, and death of Colonel Santosh Babu of Andhra Pradesh is nothing but murder. We have all been condemning this incident. China has always been doing such sly things. First they show friendship, then stab us in the back. They have resorted to such means many times in the past," the Congress leader said.

"We cannot remain silent when they attack us. We thus declare that we stand by the soldiers of the country and also reiterate that we stand with the Union government. In this time, it is our duty to assist the soldiers."

> We declare that we stand by the soldiers of the country and also reiterate that we stand with the Union government
>
> Mallikarjun Kharge, Congress leader

Kharge, who is now a Rajya Sabha member from Karnataka, expressed outrage over China's warfare tactics. However, he reminded the Prime Minister that he must "not hide the truth", but must bring it before the people.

He also said that former Congress president Rahul Gandhi had raised these issues and questioned the government. "Yet, the Union government has not grasped the issue. All of us together have to work to save the nation," he said.

HOWEVER, it is still not clear if the department will be able to reach the annual target of Rs 12,600 crore.

Stamps and registrations, excise, motor vehicle registration and fuel tax are among the major sources of revenue for the state government. "We are recovering well. On the first day, when we restarted after the lockdown, the revenue from registrations was around Rs 60 lakh and now it is reaching around Rs 45 crore per day," Revenue Minister R Ashoka told The New Indian Express. Economic recovery is a challenge as well as the focus of the government, he added.

Majority of revenues through registration of properties comes from Bengaluru Urban, Bengaluru Rural, Ramanagar, Belagavi and Tumakuru, sources said.

"Bengaluru is recovering quite fast," said Suresh Hari, Chairman, Confederation of Real Estate Developers' Association of India (CREDAI), Bengaluru. "There are some challenges and it will help customers if the banks reduce interest rates. Such a situation (the pandemic) happens once in a century. We have to be a little more dashing, and banks should not be risk-averse," he said.

According to him, the residential real estate sector is doing much better than the commercial sector as people had been waiting to register their properties and move into their new homes.

I-DAY PREDICTION: WAR ROOM SAYS STATE WILL SEE 25K ACTIVE CASES

Earlier forecast of 2L cases downsized; Growth rate depends on human behaviour, awareness

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

THIS Independence Day, celebrations are likely to be muted. The Karnataka Covid-19 war room anticipates 20,000 to 25,000 active cases across the State by mid-August, as against an earlier projection by some experts of a whopping 2 lakh cases by then.

This data was released by the state war room. Munish Moudgil, in charge of the war room, said, "The expected active cases by August 15 is 20,000-25,000, however, it is extremely difficult to make accurate projections, particularly beyond 15-20 days, as it is dependent on the behaviour of individual citizens as well as action points the state government takes."

Active cases are those which currently test positive and are under treatment. As of Monday, there were 3,523 active cases in Karnataka, and it is this number the Covid-19 war room anticipates going up to 25,000 by mid-August.

Simply put, the number of active cases is arrived at by subtracting the sum of those discharged so far, and the total number of deaths, from the tally. The total number of those who tested positive since the first case was reported on March 8 is 9,399, and includes those who have recovered.

Moudgil said that in July, the number of active cases is expected to reach 10,000. But he pointed out that such projections are very sensitive — if the daily growth rate is 3 per cent, the tally by mid-August would be 17,000. But if growth rate is 4 per cent, the number of cases would reach 25,000 in about 50-60 days.

He said that every successful effort to reduce growth rate would exponentially reduce numbers. "But conversely, we could pay heavily for any slip-up," he said.

Preventive measures could make a huge difference too. "Citizens can make a major difference by masking up, washing hands and observing hygiene and social distancing practices," he said.

Some of the preventive action points are to trace all contacts of Covid patients within 24 hours and effectively quarantine them, quarantine every interstate arrival for 14 days, increase both quantity and quality of testing, besides selecting and testing vulnerable and infectious groups.

Pvt hospitals deny Covid treatment to cardiologist

RANJANI MADHAVAN @Bengaluru:

A cardiologist from Jayadeva Institute of Cardiovascular Sciences and Research, who tested positive on Sunday evening, was denied treatment by private hospitals when he tried to get admitted for Covid-19 treatment.

He worked in the OPD section and did rounds of the inpatient department. He began suffering from fever, sore throat and bodyache, but was largely asymptomatic. Finally, he got admitted in the cardiac rehabilitation block of Jayadeva Hospital, which is separate from the main building.

"He went to many private hospitals, some said they were full and others were reluctant to admit him. Government rules mandate that they should admit corona patients. When private hospitals come for meetings, they agree to take part in the fight against Covid, but when it comes to their own colleague, they refuse treatment," said Dr C N Manjunath, director of Jayadeva Hospital.

Moreover, news of their colleague testing positive has left other doctors and nurses concerned for their own safety, as they see 800-1000 people per day in the outpatient section, and attend to over 500 in-patients. Around 15 primary contacts working with the cardiologist are said to be quarantined.

"Services should be restricted to emergency cases of heart failure. Routine check-ups can be postponed. Doctors in the OPD wear N95 masks but not PPE kits. With hundreds of patients frequenting the OPD, it is a risk for all the medicaldoctors, nurses and other support staff," said a doctor.

Another doctor told TNIE, "For over two months during the lockdown, no one came to hospitals. Now they are visiting the OPD and not following social distancing. People can consult local doctors for routine check-ups and ECG, and send ECG reports to us on WhatsApp. One or two attendants accompany each patient, increasing exposure."

After 12 of its employees tested positive, BMTC is looking to protect staffers from contracting the virus. On Monday, after a meeting with the top management, BMTC decided to undertake depot-level testing of its crew by health officers. An incentive will be given to the crew who were on duty during the lockdown. "A video was also released on precautionary measures to be taken by commuters with a BMTC conductor, Abubakar Siddik, singing in Kannada," said BMTC managing director C Shikha. They play an important role and the infection is spreading in the police department. We have sealed down six police stations. I have requested the CM for a dedicated lab for police personnel and corona warriors." He also requested health officials to reserve beds in hospitals for frontline workers.

DR Vishal Rao and his team of researchers are shortly going to write to the Drug Controller General of India (DCGI) and the Indian Council of Medical Research (ICMR) seeking permission for Phase-2 of the clinical trials of cytokine therapy citing "initial success in Phase-1 of clinical trial," Dr Rao told The New Indian Express. He is the principal investigator of Phase-1 clinical trial of cytokine therapy for healthy volunteers in Karnataka and noted oncologist from the HCG group of hospitals.

"We are going to write to the DGCI and ICMR that we have successfully completed the first in-human Phase-1 clinical trials (WHO registered) for healthy volunteers and initial results from the animal studies are very promising," he said. We have sought their permission for clinical trial Phase-2, he added.

"We have completed our cytokine study for six subjects, who had voluntarily enrolled for it. Our team of doctors at HCG comprising cell biologists, immunologists and clinicians have developed the cytokine-mediated anti-Covid therapy using human donor blood. We found that the key to successfully decreasing the disease fatality could be the stimulation of the immune responses in the early stages of infection. This could be done through the administration of Cytokine-Interferons (IFNs) concoction – a group of signalling proteins made by human host cells in response to the virus — which play a vital role in inducing and modulating an array of immune responses in a controlled manner. It has been shown to play a crucial role in bridging innate and adaptive immunity," explained Dr Rao.

Dr Vishal Rao

The first subject for Phase-1 was screened on May 30 and the last one on June 16 at the HCG in the City, he added.

"We found that there was no adverse reaction in any of them and all the volunteers were safe. We believe this therapy will also help target future viruse," said Dr Rao.

Victoria nurses complain of low-quality PPE kits

IFFATH FATHIMA, RANJANI MADHAVAN @Bengaluru

WITH four of their fraternity testing positive at the Victoria Hospital, the nurses have complained to the hospital authorities about the poor quality of Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) kits and even went up to Medical Education Minister Dr K Sudhakar in this regard.

So far there have been 13 positive cases of frontline workers at Victoria which include doctors, nurses, group D staff and lab technicians. Among the 13 positives, four were nurses. Speaking to TNIE, a nurse said, "We are the frontline workers and need to be provided with good PPE kits. The ones provided were damaged. We believe that this could be the reason for the positive cases. Ideally, the inorganic or organic fluids should not enter the PPE. But this was not the case with the kits we were provided. That is why we decided to raise our voice and even spoke to minister Sudhakar about it."

The nurse said, "The hospital management said that we were provided with good quality kits. However, they are many kits which come through sponsors. Those are not checked properly and don't meet the PPE standards. In the beginning we would get PPE kits of high quality, but now it is not so."

Though the PPE kits should bear the 16603 ISO mark, the nurses said the kits didn't have the mark. The nurses decided to stop work until good quality kits were provided. However, they resumed work after the minister's assurance that he will sort it out.

Dr Smitha Segu, Task Force Head and Nodal Officer for Covid-19 at Victoria Hospital, said, "It is not because of PPE kits, there could be other reasons. We have a technical team which checks on the quality. The doctors are given the PPE kits to wear for six hours and give feedback, based on which we select the company which can provide us the kits."

Satphone call: Chamarajanagar police on alert

Police detected satphone signals in Cauvery Wildlife Sanctuary a week ago, and have ramped up surveillance

K SHIVA KUMAR @Mysuru

POLICE forces, including the Internal Security Division (ISD), are on high alert after it was found that a call was made via satellite phone - the use of which is banned in India - in the Gopinatham Range in the Cauvery Wildlife Sanctuary around a week ago.

The call was placed near a temple on the banks of the Cauvery on the Karnataka-Tamil Nadu border, according to police sources. A couple of months ago, authorities found that a call was made by a satphone in the Bandipur National Park.

Chamarajanagar SP Anand Kumar confirmed that a satphone was used within MM Hills police station limits. He said the ISD and other agencies are investigating the call.

Senior police officers have visited the spot and instructions have been issued to step up patrolling and intelligence gathering in the region and the villages in the area.

A senior officer told The New Indian Express that several agencies are coordinating the investigation as it is difficult for the local police to patrol 3,000 square kilometre of forests divided into the Cauvery Wildlife Sanctuary, the MM Hills Sanctuary and the Bandipur National Park in Chamarajanagar district.

The Anti-Naxal Force and forest special task force are also on alert and are searching the forests while the local police are keeping tabs on movement of vehicles and people in MM Hills and around the border near Palar bridge while the forest department is on alert near Hogenakkal. They also looking into whether the local farmhouses or hotels run by private establishments or the government have any guests.

Investigating agencies are looking into leads that foreign tourists trekking in the region may have used satphones, there has been no reports of tourist movement around the area since the lockdown was declared three months ago.

Although it has been a decade since there were reports of Tamil extremists in the region, police have decided to meet with the forest department at the earliest to obtain information on movement in the forests.

When contacted, forest department officials said they were unaware of satphone usage, and said they needed more staff to patrol the vast forests to keep tabs on poaching, fire control during the summer and for regular patrolling duty.

Fragile hill district C'magaluru to get own tourism policy

Greens hope it will reduce ESZ violations

MEERA BHARDWAJ @Bengaluru

ALTHOUGH the new Karnataka tourism policy (2020-25) has been finalised recently, however, for Chikkamagaluru district, a separate policy is being formulated to address the growing concerns of environmentalists and conservationists. The hill district with just a population of 12 lakh receives a tourist footfall of 85 lakh. In the wake of rampant violations -- construction of resorts, roads, exploitation of water resources in ecologically fragile areas and spoilage of hills ranges by irresponsible tourists -- the need for a separate tourism policy was felt.

Presently, efforts have begun to frame guidelines so as to make tourism development and tourist travel in the district safe for its forests and wildlife. Recently, tourism minister C T Ravi had called for a meeting of all stakeholders in Chikkamagaluru to discuss the issue. In this regard, another series of meetings will be held to finalise the policy and come out with the guidelines. According to the minister, the Karnataka State Tourism Policy 2020-25 has already been finalised and further, there is a plan for a separate policy for Western Ghats.

Welcoming the initiative, activists said this is in the wake of continuing violations and rampant construction activities in ESZ and other ecologically fragile areas of the district. Honorary wildlife warden G Veeresh said the policy should incorporate all issues affecting both environment and wildlife while the hospitality sector should concentrate and strengthen tourist facilities within the city limits and not in the hill ranges or ESZ areas of protected areas.

The meeting was attended by all stakeholders including tourist and travel agencies and other related organisations. Five sub-committees have been formed for four different kinds of tourism as also improvement of facilities in Chikkamagaluru town. They include spiritual tourism, adventure sports tourism, plantation tourism, trekking routes (falling in forest areas) and town improvement sector.

According to the stakeholders, it was a long-time demand to have a separate tourism policy for the district. In fact, tourism activities should be restricted in wildlife areas while it can be increased in the religious sector as Chikkamagaluru is home to many temples of the Hoysala era which hardly sees any visitors due to lack of tourist facilities, they said.

Environmentalists opined that there should be a tourism carrying capacity study for Chikkamagaluru as rising tourism is causing serious impact on the ecology The other suggestions were tourism should incorporate guides who are naturalists and eco guards for adventure sports tourism. The recommendations given by the sub committees will be incorporated in the state tourism policy, the minister assured the stakeholders.

CCB gets sharp shooter Bachkana's custody

Bengaluru: Bengaluru: Continuing their investigation into cases against Ravi Poojary, the Central Crime Branch (CCB) police have obtained custody of notorious sharp shooter and Poojary's close aide Yusuf Suleiman Kadri alias Yusuf Bachkana. Joint Commissioner of Police (Crime) Sandeep Patil said Bachkana was already implicated in the murder of builder Subbaraju, and is being questioned about his role in other cases. Sources said that Bachkana, who was lodged in a Maharashtra prison, is the close aide of Poojary and both have committed several offences together. "Bachkana, who was earlier close to Chhota Rajan, later joined Poojary's gang. His involvement in several shootings is being probed by the Maharashtra police," an official said. Subbaraju, a builder, was shot dead at his Sheshadripuram office in January 2001. The police had arrested several including Bachkana. ENJOY HIGH TEA IN THIS RETRO TRAIN COACH-CAFE

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Mysuru

The cafe inside the Rail Museum was inaugurated on Monday in Mysuru

FOR those fancying a cup of tea and snacks in a train coach around Victorian settings, but worried about even hopping on a train due to the COVID scare can head straight to Mysuru's railway museum as the railways has set up a rail coach-turned-cafe setup there.

The Mysuru Rail Museum, which is famous for its collections on rail history, was recently renovated and thrown open to the public with a renovated toy train as well as age-old coaches, princely carriages, and other heritage paraphernalia.

The cafe was also set up after its renovation but with the lockdown restrictions, it was not opened for public, and now with relaxations, it was inaugurated on Monday and was thrown open for the public.

Notably, the cafe will be run by South Western Railway Women's Welfare Organization instead of third party vendors in a no profit-no loss mode to provide affordable food and beverages in a bid to promote the cafe during the tough times when such attractions are receiving relatively lesser footfall.

It is built on an age-old metre gauge defunct coach, repurposed with a wooden victorian feel and tables to accommodate 20 people and boasts of an amazing view through the coach windows at the green and rustic setting of the renovated museum and its toy train. The cafe was inaugurated by divisional railway manager of Mysuru division Aparna Garg on Monday.

Bizman kills kin, ends life

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

A businessman named Amit Agarwal allegedly killed several members of his family and then committed suicide in Kolkata on Monday.

Mahadevapura police said that based on information they received from the Kolkata police, they went to the accused's apartment on Monday. When they received no answer, they broke open the lock to find the body of his wife Shilpi Agarwal lying on the kitchen floor next to a cupboard. Police said that only a postmortem report would ascertain whether she had been murdered.

Police found a suicide note in the apartment, allegedly written by Amit, saying that he had killed his wife and then killed himself. Police have registered a case of murder.

Shilpi and Amit had not been living together for the past two years, due to marital discord, police said. They have a 10-year-old son. Police said he took his son to Kolkata and dropped the boy off at a relative's house and went to the house of his in-laws, where he allegedly shot and killed his mother-in-law. His father-in-law locked him in a room, where police later found him dead. He appeared to have turned the gun on himself, Kolkata police said.

APEX COURT GIVES NOD FOR RATH YATRA IN ODISHA

Celebrations will have to be held only in Puri in a restricted manner, without any congregation of devotees; govt to suspend the yatra in case Covid cases increase

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@New Delhi

THE Supreme Court on Monday allowed the annual Rath Yatra at the Jagannath Puri temple in Odisha to begin from Tuesday, while modifying its June 18 direction that had barred the festival.

A bench led by Chief Justice of India S A Bobde held an urgent hearing of the matter after the central government appealed for a modification to permit the centuries-old tradition with restrictions.

Odisha government too came out in support of the annual procession, but only in Puri.

The court said the state will be responsible for the arrangements and shall do so in consultation with the temple management committee and the Centre. "We aren't asking the state you should do it but we are only allowing this to be done on certain conditions," the bench said.

It was also clarified that the festival, spread over a period of 10-12 days, will be held only in Puri and no other part of Odisha. The bench made it clear that celebrations will have to be done in a restricted manner, without any congregation of devotees and it would be open for the government to suspend the yatra in case Covid cases increase.

In view of the threat posed by Covid-19 pandemic, the apex court had halted the yatra.

The order came on a petition filed by NGO Odisha Vikas Parishad (OVP) against the state high court's order that left it to the Odisha government to decide on holding the yatra.

During today's hearing, NGO said if at all the yatra is allowed then the participation of servitors should be restricted, all 2,500 should not be allowed to perform the rituals.

At this, the bench said it was not there to micromanage the yatra, and will leave it to the wisdom of the state to work out the preparations. Lawyers for devotees supported the idea of a live telecast of the festival, as was suggested by the Centre.

"All 'sebayats' and 'pandas' who have tested negative for COVID-19 can participate in rituals as may be decided by H H Shri Shankaracharya. People may not congregate and seek blessings on TV during live telecast. Raja of Puri and the temple committee may supervise arrangements of these rituals," Solicitor General Tushar Mehta told the bench in response to Centre's role.

In the morning, Mehta while mentioning the case for urgent hearing before Justice Arun Mishra said, "It's a matter of faith for crores, a tradition of centuries. If Lord Jagannath will not come out tomorrow, he cannot come out for 12 years as per tradition."

Puri all set for Trinity Jagannath roll; devotees welcome SC's decision

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Puri

CHANTS of 'Jai Jagannath' and 'Haribol' filled the air when Supreme Court read out its decision favouring holding of the Trinity's Rath Yatra at Puri amid restrictions.

Devotees, including many who fasted praying for a favourable decision, gathered in front of the temple since early morning waiting for the apex court's hearing. The announcement was a moment of unbriddled joy for Labadya Devi, a septuagenerian devotee. "I could not contain my anxiousness sitting at home when the Supreme Court was hearing the review petition. So I rushed to Badadanda. Lord Jagannath has finally answered our prayers," said Devi, while lighting a lamp outside the Simhadwara.

Immediately after the apex court decision the Biswakarma servitors who had been working in two shifts since May second week to complete construction of the three massive chariots by June 22, veered the structures from the Ratha Khala (construction yard) to the area in front of the temple's main gate. They pulled Taladhwaja of Lord Balabhadra first and then Nandighosh of Lord Jagannath. Devi Subhadra's Darpdalana was pulled the last. By evening, all the three chariots were now stationed in front of Simhadwara facing towards Gundicha temple.

Engineers NC Pal and Girish Roy who had supervised the chariot construction work, issued road worthy certificates for the structures. Roopakars (artists) and Darzis (tailors), who worked on decoration of the three chariots also celebrated the announcement by distributing sweets. Earlier in the day after 'Sakhala Dhopa', Pujapandas of the deities brought three separate 'agyanmallyas' and handed them over to chief servitors of the three chariots ordering them to bring chariots to the designated place.

After the verdict, the Chief Secretary Asit Kumar Tripathy and DGP Abhay arrived at Puri to oversee preparations for the festival. Tripathy said all steps have been taken to conduct the Yatra in adherance to Covid-19 guidelines and without participation of devotees as directed by the Supreme Court.

'It's win-win situation for industry, workers'

NOW, the RDPR Department is conducting a sample survey at one panchayat in each hobli. "Our officials ask workers their education qualification, skills, their earlier employment, etc. This report, which is expected to be completed by June 25, will be submitted to respective deputy commissioners and panchayat chief executive officers, who can organise job fairs at industrial clusters where qualified people can find suitable employment. It's a win-win situation for industries and workers. Recently, a small job fair was held at Ballari," Ateeq said.

"More people coming under MNREGA is a good sign and we can accommodate them all under the scheme. But we cannot find suitable jobs for them based on their qualifications. If there are skilled labourers, we will put them to the Skill Development Department, where they can take up employment as per their ability," he added.

Sources said that it is not fair to take workers who are overqualified under MNREGA. "Just because they apply or register for MNREGA, they need not work as manual labourers," they added.

HAPPY ENDING

Covid reunites Maha siblings

KIRAN BALANNANAVAR @Ballari

PRASANNA Joshi, an employee with a religious NGO in Maharashtra, had a shock of his life when he found a post on social media about his missing sister. His sister, Supriya, had gone missing since 2016 from Latur of Maharashtra and she was found in Ballari recently.

Prasanna had tried searching for his sister several times in the past but to no avail. It is said Supriya left home after a fight with her brother over her marriage. She wandered in many places before she settled down in Ballari.

The happy tidings started when the district administration stepped up checking during the outbreak of the pandemic in March. The officials found that Supriya was homeless and was mentally unstable. They took her to Vijayanagar Institute of Medical Sciences (VIMS) for Covid-19 testing. After she was found negative, she was kept under treatment at Shanti Dhama orphanage centre.

The staff and counsellors at the orphanage tried talking to Supriya about her family. They realised that she had not fully recovered from her mental trauma and that she had left her home long ago. "We decided to post about her on the social media seeking any contact of her relatives. In June first week, Prasanna Joshi, Supriya's brother, contacted us and came down to Ballari. After being in quarantine and testing negative, he was allowed to meet his sister. Both siblings recognised each other upon meeting," said a senior counsellor at Shanti Dhama.

DC S S Nakul said that Supriya was admitted to hospital in March. "We are happy about the family reunion and all the credit goes to the hospital and orphanage staff in Ballari," he said.

R Nagaraj, District Women and Child Welfare Development Officer, said, "She mention about visiting Gokarna and Goa in the last few years. When we came to know that she had left her home, we decided to go on social media to find her family," he explained.

Expressing gratitude

Prasanna Joshi, Supriya's brother thanked the Ballari district administration for the happy reunion. "Our parents died in 2013 and since then Supriya was in a state of shock. She fought with me over a petty issue and left home. Now that I have found her, I have no words to express my happiness," he told TNIE.

RECALIBRATING OUR THINKING ON STRATEGIC DEFENCE AND DIPLOMACY

Public pressure in a cacophonous democracy is not easy to handle. Particularly when there are elections to be found at every turn. Did the Bihar regiment cross the Line of Actual Control? Or did they valiantly fight back a brutal onslaught to defend a perception? An onslaught where medieval weaponry was used (why do we even spend some ₹3.17 lakh crore, not counting pension, if it will come down to nails and sticks)?

Either way, it's time we recalibrate our thinking on strategic defence and diplomacy. Our infrastructure-building on the road to Daulat Beg Oldi could have been accompanied by a pre-emptive military build-up to thwart Chinese summer activity. Now that China has done what it has done, given us all a reminiscence of 1962, New Delhi cannot tread a path of total confrontation, coerced by passion-driven public opinion. It must take strategic, logical steps. There's a pandemic to be fought too. And while it can't be business as usual, India also cannot disengage from business entirely. From yoga teachers to IT behemoths, there are plenty of interests entrenched there. Not to mention other sundry trade, despite a dipping China-bound export graph. Beijing, therefore, must be telling itself: We don't have much to lose by taking on India. It's a multi-pronged offensive: Nepal opening another front, tariff concessions to Dhaka. What do we have? Donald Trump, as unpredictable as ever, and hinging on that, the Quad (US, Japan, India, Australia).

Beijing is virtually doing what it wants in South China Sea, threatening and bullying neighbours. India has little option but to think for itself. Statements will need to be made meanwhile for domestic consumption—the evacuation of the field of the kind of braggadocio that accompanies Indo-Pak encounters is welcome—but at some stage they stand the risk of being critically evaluated in an open society.

ATHLETES NEED MENTAL HELP IN TROUBLED TIMES

Anxiety and existential doubt are a concoction that could create turmoil in the head. As we stare at the unknown, the world is not an easy place to live in. If you are among a bunch of athletes with high levels of energy and yet confined to your room in a training centre for close to three months doing nothing else, the mental stress can become unbearable.

Players of India's men's and women's hockey teams had been requesting Hockey India (HI) for a while to let them go home because of the stress. Due to the lockdown, they were unable to train outdoors at the Sports Authority of India's (SAI) training centre in Bengaluru. Since May, the men's and women's captains were making this point, but HI officials said no due to travel restrictions. Last week, when restrictions were eased in certain places and SAI allowed the players to train on the ground, HI officials gave the players permission to go home. A player confessed, "We are mentally strong but the truth is we are lonely most of the time. Family gives you that additional mental support."

The hockey players are lucky. Players all over the world have been complaining about mental stress. From Olympic medallists to upcoming stars, they have gone on record saying they have not been keeping well. In India too—where seeking psychological help still has a taboo attached to it—this has been felt. Sportspersons, including those who have won laurels for the country in multi-discipline events, have complained of sleeplessness, loneliness, lack of motivation, frustration and anxiety. What's more, the number of people seeking help also increased during the first lockdown in March and April. Sportspersons, lest it be forgotten, are as human as us. Getting back to training is important but getting back in shape mentally is equally important, if not more. For top athletes, games are won or lost more in the mind than on the field. It is only fair that psychologists be made available for athletes in times of distress, or for all athletes who are getting back to training after a period of stress and strain.

Geographically, there is no region better suited for China-Pakistan military collusion than Ladakh

LADAKH AND THE PAKISTAN CONNECT

LT GEN (RETD) SYED ATA HASNAIN

Former Commander, Srinagar-based 15 Corps. Now Chancellor, Central University of Kashmir

AMIT BANDRE

From the very active western front in J&K with high-intensity anti-terrorist operations in the hinterland and the Line of Control (LoC), the security focus of the nation has shifted to Ladakh and the China-related front. We have been pursuing a policy of stabilising our relationship with China over the last many years with reasonable results. The economic benefits to both nations appeared a rational way forward although the trade relationship has been largely skewed in favour of China.

Doklam 2017 put a halt to the process of stabilisation temporarily but the same was revived through the informal summits at Wuhan and Mahabalipuram in 2018-19. Military stand-offs along the Line of Actual Control (LAC) have also been rife for some years, and the hot and cold in the relationship with China had come to be accepted as something both nations could yet live with. In May 2020, all this seems to have changed with a serious military stand-off at the LAC in Ladakh, leading to a higher level of military readiness all along the northern and eastern borders. The recent incident in the Galwan Valley involving a major fracas between Indian and PLA troops led to bloodshed on both sides for the first time in 45 years. As tempers cool and heavy deployments continue, it is increasingly evident that besides just the Chinese connection to the Ladakh face-off, there is a serious Pakistan connect too. An understanding of this will assist in further appreciation of the situation in Ladakh.

There is no region better suited for Sino-Pak military collusion than Ladakh. Coordinated military operations from both can converge and this can seriously threaten India's security in this area. On the political front, India's declaration of intent to secure the areas of J&K under the occupation of Pakistan appears to have caused major concern in Islamabad. The latter has been able to convince China of the potential Indian threat to their mutual interests in PoK and Gilgit Baltistan (GB), which are primarily about the China-Pakistan Economic Corridor (CPEC), a reasonably fragile communication artery leading from Xinjiang in China to the Indian Ocean port of Gwadar in Pakistan, along with connected projects. India's greater political confidence in dealing with the J&K issue, as demonstrated by the decision to abrogate Article 370 in August 2019, is also leading to this consternation in the Sino-Pakistan sphere. Left at that, it is probably jointly appreciated by both that it will help boost Indian strategic confidence. The strengthening Indo-US strategic partnership is also considered as a phenomenon that aids a scaled-up Indian confidence. Given the altered international strategic environment with the onset of the current pandemic, China views this as an opportunity to aggressively set the narrative for its domination in the post-pandemic world order. Intimidation and coercion of India are aimed at denting its strategic confidence, cautioning it in relation to its emerging partnerships with the US and its allies, and curtailing its ambitions that impinge on China's interests. The latter primarily relates to the GB region.

Pakistan's potential role in trying to militarily intimidate India in Ladakh can be better understood from the military geography. Three fronts exist here: Kargil (with Pakistan), East Ladakh (with China) and the central Karakoram-Siachen-Shyok (KSS) area with Pakistan ranged against Siachen and China against the Karakoram. Some interest seems to have been generated in Pakistani strategic circles about the details of the military geography of the KSS area. A deep study would suggest collusive interest in the Shyok Valley north of the Ladakh range to achieve three strategic gains. First is the intent to wrest control of Siachen, a perennial source of fresh water for the water-starved nation. Second is the broadening of the border with China with better terrain to facilitate communication. Third is the potential of opening another artery akin to the CPEC but in more stable terrain conditions, substantially adding to China's dependence on Pakistan.

> Three fronts exist in the region: Kargil (with Pakistan), East Ladakh (with China) and the central Karakoram-Siachen-Shyok area with Pakistan ranged against Siachen and China against the Karakoram

All the above remain dreams for projection and intimidation to counter India's strategic confidence. Both China and Pakistan have one quality in common in their war-fighting doctrines: the consistent employment of information warfare. This is what India should expect in considerable load in the near future. I consider the ongoing attempt at 'salami slicing' by China in Ladakh as an experiment to assess how far India will go in its response strategy. It is imperative that this attempted bullying must be met squarely, even though ramping up deployment all along the northern and eastern borders is a highly expensive exercise, especially in Covid-19 times.

As a precursor to any intimate collusion in Ladakh, Pakistan may well have offered China the facilitation of a dual front; enhanced activities at the LoC and hinterland Kashmir would form part of this. India appears to have handled this well with successful operations paying good dividends. However symbolic, it is good to see rapid decision-making in the domain of military acquisition in the purchase of additional combat aircraft for the IAF. The same alacrity must be displayed in further ramping up of our capability and infrastructure. The Navy too must receive a higher budget as it is anticipated that stand-offs in the future would extend to the maritime domain. Indian diplomacy too must shut no doors. We must continue to engage with China even as we attempt to hurt it economically to the extent we can. The Indian approach must adopt a position of strength with a clear projection that in localised border conflicts, it will be advantage India. A cooperative approach with the US and its allies must continue even as we retain strategic autonomy. The clear message which must emanate from New Delhi is that India is no pushover and it will go to any extent to secure its interests.

HAS CHINA SHOT ITSELF IN THE WALLET?

HARISH BIJOOR

Brand Guru and Founder, Harish Bijoor Consults

Neighbours don't make the best of friends. Not yours. Not mine.

I am talking about countries for now. The two Koreas, the two Germanys of yore, and India, Pakistan, China and now Nepal are classic examples. Neighbours are just too close to be good friends. There are issues common that are just too contentious. And more often than not, there is history and its leftover baggage that will just never let neighbours be good friends.

At times neighbours are adjacencies due to a point of political sleight. They were one, and then they became two. At times neighbours have a political line drawn through their drawing rooms due to a completely opposed colour of ideology to boot. Neighbours therefore lead divided lives.

The India-China face-off is the latest point of contention at hand. After four decades, the incident in the Galwan Valley, where both sides faced casualties, is a point of fractious debate across the borders of the two countries.

Even as a series of political and military actions are being contemplated, there is a huge debate on economic action. The key question is whether China has shot itself in the wallet this time round. This is 2020 and the wallet seems to be more important than even the foot.

We have seen visuals of China-made television sets being thrown off balconies, smashed with hammers; Chinese brands are on the back foot. Mobile handsets of Korean, Taiwanese and Japanese companies have come out of the closet quickly. In many ways, the #BoycottChineseProducts seems to have suddenly replaced the evocative #VocalForLocal movement all in a matter of days, much to the relief of brands of every other nationality. For now.

Economic action has been quick. There is a 15-point charter of action that delineates next steps put together. And even as this charter gets debated into a point of implementation, one needs to sit back and think about what is best for the country first and the consumer next. Must this be sudden death, or a slow one?

The argument of self-reliance is a solid one. It, however, needs to be a plan based on economic reality rather than mere popular rhetoric. Possibly a 15-year plan with a purpose. A plan that seeks import substitution in every realm to be a key part. A plan that will seek self-reliance in every realm for a start. Self-reliance in the space of agriculture, manufacturing and services in totality. In the space of grains and pulses that we import today. In the space of sudden onion imports to stabilise prices, in the space of cash crops we import so happily today, and in every commodity, be it oil or bauxite.

India continues to import from everywhere, seeking out the cheap and the much-needed. And roughly 24% of our imports come from China. We are yet to substitute our dependence on China, even in the arenas of low-tech manufacturing such as fans and ovens, leave alone high-end electronics. And components are indeed a high-value part of everything we import. If we are to actually do an audit in our modern day lives, there is a little bit of China in everything.

> A carefully thought-out plan has China positioned as a factory to the entire world. A Boycott China plan cannot happen overnight, but only as an equally carefully thought-out plan by India and the world at large. And it just might take all of 15 years to implement it in full

As we ask the consumer to boycott Chinese products, the important point is that the consumer today does not go to the market looking for a "Made in China" product. The consumer looks for a high-quality offering that is durable and comes at a price that is affordable. Strangely and not so strangely, China has cracked that mix.

To an extent, China has today become the world's factory. The whole world has been using it as just that. China produces products in its gargantuan factories and sends it all across the world. And many of us don't want to do what China does, at times for reasons related to the environment, and at times for reasons related to higher costs and lesser efficiencies. By and large, the biggest brands in the world have outsourced production to China.

China today is not a geography alone. It is much more than that. It is a currency. A currency that it invests all across the globe to insulate its inability to produce more for the world within its geography. China and companies of Chinese origin therefore invest across the world. China invests in nations (in terms of infrastructure projects), banks (as funders of the new global economy), businesses (of both the traditional and start-up variety) and consumers (in terms of creating new buyers and users for every application it makes for the new world, of which TikTok is the poster boy certainly).

As an endnote, the world has a fair bit of China in it today. It has happened slowly but surely since 1976. In hindsight, it does look like a part of a plan. A carefully thought-out plan that has China positioned as a factory to the world, a commodity, an infrastructure play, possibly a 5G play in the future, and most certainly as an investor in the sunrise sectors of the world.

A Boycott China plan can happen not suddenly, not overnight, but only as an equally carefully thought-out plan by India and the world at large. And it just might take all of 15 years to implement it in full, if not more.

Free hand welcome

It is welcome news that the Indian Army troops along the Line of Actual Control are no longer fettered by protocols and restrictions in using firearms against the aggressive adversary. The commanding officer will have discretion to order use of firearms. This move will infuse more confidence among the troops.

K V Raghuram, Wayanad

Trilateral meeting will help

India's decision to participate in the Russia-India-China virtual meeting on June 23 is a welcome step. It will help pave the way for the de-escalation of tensions. This will allow India and China to frankly exchange views. Russia may be able to play a constructive role as Moscow is trusted by both sides.

Ravi Sankar KA, Kochi

Beware of China's intentions

China is a country that seems to believe that power flows from the barrel of a gun. It has an antipathy towards peaceful coexistence. The current LAC situation has to be dealt with keeping this in mind.

Philip Alexander, Bengaluru

Spend more on research

This is with reference to Centre has no road map for self-reliance (Jun 22). With the abysmally poor spending on research and development vis-a-vis the gargantuan spending on imports, our economy's future seems to be bleak. Facilitating the revival of the concept of mixed economy, where the strong public sector and energetic private sector coexist, can alone save our economy now.

Laws to help elderly

This is with reference to The silent evil of elder abuse in India (Jun 22). At their advanced age, due to worsening health conditions, the elderly are defenceless to the abuse and ridicule they encounter. Norms and legislations for senior citizens need to be made more transparent so that they can spend the last phase of their lives in peace.

Sanath Kumar T S, Thrissur

Be grateful to your parents

The author has rightly highlighted the endless worries of elderly people all over the world. Many elderly are abandoned by their children who are busy enjoying life with their own families. But we should be grateful for the sacrifices our parents made to give us a good life. Gratitude is the greatest attitude.

Thomas Matthew, Muvattupuzha

Pensions for the aged

Elder abuse is most prevalent when senior citizens are penniless and have no source of income—not even a dole from the government. The only solution seems to be state intervention for stricter legislation, pensions to all hapless elders and better management of old age homes.

K Nehru Patnaik, Vizag

Reporting abuse

The author highlighted the gravity of abuse experienced by senior citizens. Prevailing legal measures must be strengthened for better protection of the elderly. Awareness about their rights must be cultivated. The elderly should shed traditional thinking and not hesitate to report people, even their own family members, for abuse.

Chilaka Venkateswarlu, Chennai

Jobs move laudable

This is with reference to BJP offers jobs balm to migrants ahead of Bihar polls (Jun 22). It is not fair to think that the Garib Kalyan Rojgar Abhiyan has been launched with an eye on the Bihar polls. The scheme also covers other states with a large number of returnees. It will result in the economic upliftment of these returnees. The Centre deserves appreciation for the timely balm.

Hemantha Bhide, Mangaluru

Trump should be careful

It was irresponsible of US President Donald Trump to suggest slowing down Covid-19 testing to avoid bad statistics. His country is battling both the pandemic as well as protests. He should exercise more care while speaking and allay citizens' fears.

'DISALLOW CHINA FROM 5G TRIALS'

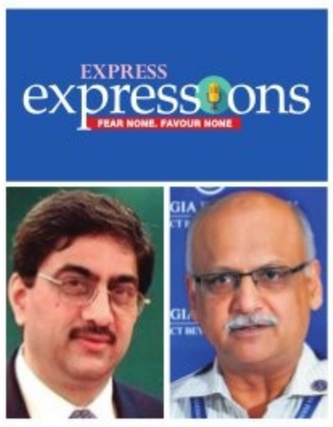
THERE is a need for realignment of diplomacy between India and China following the June 15 clash at the Galwan Valley, which claimed 20 Indian soldiers, said former Indian ambassador to China and Pakistan Gautam Bambawale and Lt Gen (retd) Narasimhan, member of the National Security Advisory Board and D-G, Centre for Contemporary China Studies. While there is a need for talks and trust-building between the two neighbouring countries, New Delhi should also continue to be on its toes in terms of surveillance, said the experts in conversation with Prabhu Chawla, Editorial Director, The New Indian Express, and N C Bipindra, defence and strategic affairs analyst on TNIE's Expressions, a series of live webcasts with people who matter.

Is China trustworthy?
Bambawale: In a relationship between any two countries, there is no question of asking if you trust each other. Ronald Reagan had once said "yes, you can trust but verify". I think verification is more important that trust. Don't expect any trust between any two countries in the world, but you must be able to verify what the other is doing and has especially promised you to do in the deals or MoUs or inter-governmental agreements.

Narasimhan: I maintain the same stance. But without trust, you can't have a bilateral ties. It is for the countries to build trust and mending the relationship.

What China was doing for the last 15-20 days?
Bambawale: Because we know there is no agreed boundary between Since 1993, we have signed many pacts and built-up architecture in those agreements of basic principles and tenets which were aimed at ensuring that peace and tranquillity are maintained at the borders. In 2020, something new has happened and that something new is the Chinese PLA, which tried to change the status quo. As a result, the architecture has now collapsed.

We have seen Chinese trying to nibble or take over land... Why are we not taking any action?
Narasimhan: They may keep trying, but they have not been able to nibble at anything... The deals have worked for almost 25 years. But this year, it has been violated by China.



Why there is a sudden provocation? Is it strategic?
Bambawale: The time is correct — when India is battling with the Covid-19. But it is all speculative.

Narasimhan: I don't think so.... He (Xi Jinping) is trying to fix the LAC as per his imagination... On the second question why now, the road construction was not an objection. The objection came when we were wanting to do the feeder infrastructure. That was one reason we can say.. The LAC in Ladakh has been someway worrying him since 2013. Before that, there were no major incidents since 1986.

Is it a bad move for China diplomatically?
Bambawale: He (Xi) has done it for a few kilometres of Ladakh... It is a minor tactical game from China. It has strategically lost to India. China by this action has pushed India in to the hands of the West and the US. We will have a much strong partnership with also countries like Japan, Austria, South Korea and even Indonesia. I am not saying India will break-off all ties. We will resolve through diplomacy.

Does India becoming UNSC member give us more elbow to handle China?
Bambawale: I would recommend and suggest that one of the steps available to India is to disallow China from participating in our 5G trials.

Is it a diplomatic failure?
Bambawale: I don't think it is an intelligence or diplomatic failure. We always knew there could be this possibility, but we did not know it would deteriorate so much that soldiers on both sides would die.

Is India capable of handling China militarily?
Narasimhan: India is quite capable, but the use of military should be the last option.

Sino-India face-off unlikely to be discussed at RIC meet

S Jaishankar to participate in a Russia-India-China trilateral today

PUSHKAR BANAKAR & MAYANK SINGH @New Delhi

EXTERNAL Affairs Minister S Jaishankar will participate in a virtual conference of the Russia-India-China (RIC) trilateral on Tuesday in the backdrop of escalating Sino-India tensions. India was not keen to be a part of the dialogue after the violent face-off along the LAC where 20 Indian soldiers lost their lives, sources said. Jaishankar agreed to be a part of the talks upon the insistence of the host, Moscow.

Sources, however, did not deny the possibility of a meeting between Defence Minister Rajnath Singh and his Chinese counterpart in Moscow. Singh is in Russia on a three-day tour to attend the victory parade for World War-II.

Russia has so far taken a cautious and measured approach to the situation and urged both countries to resolve their disputes through dialogue. According to the experts, the India-China border issue is not expected to feature at the conference.

"It is convention not to take up bilateral issues at multi lateral platforms like BRICS, SCO and RIC. It's unlikely that the issue will be brought up during the meetings of the three foreign ministers," sinologist and chairperson of the Centre for Chinese and South Asian Studies at Jawaharlal Nehru University (JNU), BR Deepak said. Though there would not be any official line on the issue at the conference, Russia may unofficially try to persuade both nations to peacefully resolve the issue, he said.

A former diplomat said, "There could be informal discussions with regard to the India-China border situation on the table but formally the issue will not be broached."

The trilateral discussions are likely to revolve around the political situation in Afghanistan following the US-Taliban peace deal and on key connectivity projects including the International North South Transport Corridor aimed at connecting Iran, Afghanistan and India to Central Europe.

Army veterans indulge in social media tussle

MAYANK SINGH @ New Delhi

THE war of words between two Army veterans got a lot of attention on social media as a former Army officer-turned-scribe and Brigadier Sandeep Thapar (Retd) traded sharp words on Twitter. Some veterans saw it as a breach of the Army's institutional ethos on the part of the scribe who is now associated with a TV channel.

It all started after the scribe criticised another journalist Ajai Shukla on during a TV debate on the Ladakh standoff. Incidentally, Shukla is also a veteran who took premature retirement at the rank of Colonel. Brigadier Thapar reacted to the criticism of Shukla and tweeted in his support. His tweet also seemed to take a shot at the service tenure of the scribe. Thapar also tagged Lt Gen HS Panag in his tweet. Journalist Man Aman Singh Chhina also responded to the tweet.

The scribe responded by tweeting, "Sandy Thapar, Gen Panag and Man Aman Singh Chinna... don't think that I cannot respond. Don't cry when you get a thrashing in public..." He also went on directly attack Thapar and question his service. Thapar responded by saying how he has served the nation for 36 years while the scribe had spent just five years in the army. Several veterans opined that the exchange hurt the image of the army and the scribe's beahviour was not as per the ethos of the organisation. In the end, both parties seemed to have amicably settled the issue.

The scribe said that he was initially not aware that the twitter handle belonged to a veteran. "Once I got to know that he was a veteran I called him and extended my regret and apologized even publicly on Twitter. Brigadier Thapar has been gracious enough as he accepted it," he said.

Questions raised over clearance to Covid drug

SUMI SUKANYA DUTTA
@New Delhi

SEVERAL questions are being raised over the government's recent clearance of anti-viral drug Favipiravir for restricted emergency use to treat mild-to-moderate Covid 19 patients. Many experts said the drug was not only expensive but it was still under trial in most countries and its efficacy was yet to be proven.

They said the drug was in clinical trial stage for treatment of Covid-19 in not only in Japan, where the drug is approved for the treating influenza, but also in the US and Europe. While Japan has commenced phase 3 clinical trials, in the United States a phase 2 trial will start.

"It's still under trial and has not been approved in the US or Europe so it is a little difficult to understand why India has already approved it," a member of the Indian Council of Medical Research's national Covid 19 task force said.

"A hype has been created around this drug in India," he added, pointing out that the drug's trial even in Japan for Covid 19 patients did not show any efficacy.

Others said the evidence cited for emergency use authorization by the Central Drugs Standard Control Organisation was rather weak. They said only an observational trial, not clinical trial, had been conducted with 160 patients in 10 hospitals without any comparison with a placebo arm.

A day after the CDSCO gave EUA to the drug, pharmaceutical major Glenmark on Saturday announced it has launched the medicine under the brand name FabiFlu at a price of about Rs 103 per tablet of 200 mg.

The drug manufacturer it is a prescription-based medication said for Covid 19 patients with the recommended dose being 1,800 mg twice daily on the first day followed by 800 mg twice daily up to day 14. It means patients will need to consume 18 pills on the first day after which they will need eight tablets every day for the next 13 days. This means they will need to spend ₹12, 566 for a course of two weeks.

Drug Controller General of India V G Somani did not respond to calls or messages but Dr R R Gangakhedkar, the chief epidemiologist of the ICMR, said national task force would review the medicine once the data of the trial conducted by Glenmark is available.

"Until then the EUA granted by the CDSCO with its preconditions can be used by the physicians for its use," he told this newspaper.

But physicians, researchers and bioethicists questioned the clearance to Favipiravir. "Now that anti-malaria drug hydroxychloroquine has been proved to be a dead horse in the context of Covid 19, a dangerous hype is being created around this medicine, which has no scientific backing," said Dr S P Kalantri, a researcher and medical superintendent of the MGIMS in Wardha.

Dr Amar Jesani, researcher and editor of the Indian Journal of Medical Ethics, called the development "baffling." He not only disapproved of the clearance for emergency use but said the CDSCO should have ensured safeguards before its use.

Reached for comment, Glenmark said the CDSCO had granted accelerated approval of the drug taking into account Covid-19's severity, rarity and lack of alternative treatment.

"Another key requirement is for the drug to be backed by clinical evidence of safety and efficacy and all of these conditions hold true in the case of FabiFlu," a company spokesperson said, adding that the interim clinical trial findings in India were in line with several clinical studies elsewhere. On the cost of the drug, the firm said the price incurred would work out to about ₹1,000 a day. "However, most patients may not require a full 14-day course as many recover within seven days or so," it said.

445 new deaths; Delhi second worst-hit state

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@New Delhi

EVEN as India registered 14,821 fresh Covid-19 cases and a whopping 445 infection-related deaths in the preceding 24 hours, the Centre on Monday cited the latest World Health Organization (WHO) report to claim that the country has one of the lowest cases per lakh population in the world.

India's cases per lakh population are 30.04, while the global average is more than its triple at 114.67, it said adding that in contrast, the US has 671.24 cases per lakh population, while the metric for Germany, Spain and Brazil is 583.88, 526.22 and 489.42 respectively.

"This low figure is, thus, a testimony to the graded, preemptive and proactive approach the government of India along with the states took for the prevention, containment and management of Covid-19," the Union Ministry of Health and Family Welfare said in a statement. India now has 4,25,282 total Covid-19 cases of which 1,74,387 are active and 13,699 have succumbed to the infection.

So far, a total of 2,37,195 patients have been recovered. In the last 24 hours, a total of 9,440 patients have been cured. The recovery rate after the infection now stands at 55.77 per cent.

Meanwhile, Delhi on Monday overtook Tamil Nadu in terms of a total number of cases to become the second worst-hit state in the pandemic in India after Maharashtra. Delhi has 59,746 cases followed by Tamil Nadu, which has 59, 377 cases.

Maharashtra tops the chart with 1,32,075 cases and 6,170 deaths.

Delhi also has the second-highest 2,175 deaths due to the infection with 63 deaths registered just overnight. The case fatality rate in the state, at 3.6 per cent, is, however, lower than Maharashtra where it is 4.6 per cent.

NEW DELHI: National carrier Air India on Monday refused allegations that passengers of its Sydney-Delhi flight were stranded in the Australian city after the pilot was tested positive for Covid-19. It said that the pilot had earlier tested negative for the pandemic.

Officials said the pilot was tested on June 16 and was found negative and as per the rules, he was rostered for the Delhi-Sydney flight of June 20. Before the flight, his sample was taken again. He was found positive after landing the flight in Sydney," officials said. Air India on June 20 was operating flight under Vande Bharat Mission. We have adhered to all the laid down protocols in this regard," the spokesperson added.

Officials pilot and his two crew have been put in quarantine in Sydney and the cabin crew or passengers have not been quarantined as they did not get in touch with the pilot. According to the Air India protocol on pre-flight Covid-19 testing, the crew will be required to visit the designated venue for testing for the purpose of giving a sample up to five days prior to departure date. Since the pilot tested negative four days prior to departure of Delhi-Sydney flight of June 20, he was rostered to operate it. ENS

Maharashtra freezes Chinese projects worth ₹5K cr

SUDHIR SURYAWANSHI @Mumbai

IN the wake of growing tension between India and China, the Maharashtra government has put three Chinese projects, worth ₹5,020 crore of investment, on hold. The Uddhav Thackeray government has recently inked Memorandums of Understanding (MoU) with three Chinese companies. Chinese firms Great Wall Motors, PMI Electro Mobility Solutions (in a joint venture with BeiqiFoton Motor) and Hengli Engineering have committed to an investment of ₹3,770 crore, ₹1,000 crore and ₹250 crore, respectively in the Talegaon industrial belt of Maharashtra (Phase II) in Pune.

However, Industry Minister Subhash Desai clarified that these projects are on hold and have not been rescinded or cancelled. "Status quo will be maintained on the MOUs with the Chinese companies for the moment. Maharashtra government placed these deals with Chinese companies on hold. This does not mean that they have been rescinded or cancelled," he clarified.

"The Maharashtra government is awaiting clear policy directions from the Union Government of India on these projects," Desai added.

However, some believe Maharashtra should not be in a hurry to decide on these investments. "There is no point in showing macho nationalism. Let the Centre take a stand first and then take decisions in Maharashtra," said a NCP minister.

Bengal BJP chief gives war cry for polls

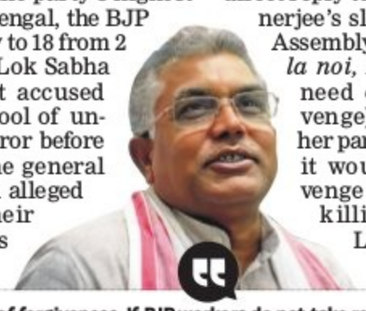
EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Kolkata

BJP's West Bengal president Dilip Ghosh's new slogan on social media — 'Badla o hobe, badol o hobe (There will be revenges as well as changes)' — has set the tone for 2021 Assembly polls, with indication that the party is going to adopt the same strategy which it accuses the ruling Trinamool Congress of resorting to violence.

"Cowards talk of forgiveness. If BJP workers do not take revenge on TMC, then people of Bengal will call them cowards," said Ghosh.

The 'revenge strategy', which came shortly before one of the BJP general secretaries threatened to burn down a police station, has drawn flak, not only in the Trinamool camp but also in his own outfit. Many BJP leaders said such comments might not go down well.

Marking the party's highest growth in Bengal, the BJP took its tally to 18 from 2 in the 2019 Lok Sabha elections. It accused the Trinamool of unleashing terror before and after the general election and alleged many of their workers were murdered by the ruling party.



Cowards talk of forgiveness. If BJP workers do not take revenge on TMC, then people of Bengal will call them cowards — Dilip Ghosh, BJP Bengal chief

Referring to Ghosh's remark, political observers said the crucial 2021 Assembly polls are unlikely to be an exception.

Ghosh's slogan is said to be a direct reply to CM Mamata Banerjee's slogan before 2011 Assembly elections, 'Badla noi, Badal Chai (We need change, not revenge)', indicating if her party retains power, it would not seek revenge for the political killings during the Left Front rule.

Hours after Ghosh uploaded his slogan on Twitter, BJP state general secretary Sayantan Basu threatened to burn down Dantan police station in West Midnapore on Sunday in protest against the murder of a BJP worker. Many BJP workers have been killed by TMC, he alleged.

BJP's national secretary Rahul Sinha said Mamata's slogan had assured people of peace. "But TMC did not keep its promises and betrayed people of Bengal."

Trinamool minister Firhad Hakim described BJP as a terror outfit. "They will destroy Bengal. People should be careful about it and reject the party," he said.

Covid cases in shelter home: NHRC glare on UP

57 minor girls at govt-run shelter home in Kanpur have tested positive

NAMITA BAJPAI @Lucknow

A government-run shelter home for destitute women and girls in Kanpur city has emerged as a Covid hotspot with 57 minor girls testing positive since June 17, prompting the apex human rights panel to send notices to UP officials.

There are seven pregnant inmates at the shelter home of which five have tested coronavirus positive while one has tested positive for HIV and another for Hepatitis C.

The National Commission for Human Rights (NHRC) sent notices to the state government and police, taking suo motu cognisance of the reports. It has issued a notice to the UP chief secretary, seeking a detailed report, including their health status, medical treatment and counselling. The Commission has also asked the UP DGP for a report regarding the registration of an FIR and the status of investigation.

'No male visitors possible'

Uttar Pradesh Women's Commission member Poonam Kapoor claimed that she was a regular visitor to the shelter home and there was no question of any male visiting the shelter home.

Meanwhile, clearing the air over the 'suspicious' pregnancy of the inmates, officials claimed that all the seven minor inmates were pregnant at the time of their admission to the shelter home. District probation officer Ajit Kumar released a list of the inmates with their details including date of admission, medical tests and status of their legal cases. Of the seven pregnant minors, two each are from Agra, Etah and Kanpur City while one is from Kannauj. All of them were admitted to the shelter home between November 2019 and June 2020.

Two girls with coronavirus are 8 months pregnant and are admitted to Covid maternity facility, Kumar said.

According to Kanpur DM Brahmadeo Ram Tiwari, 33 inmates tested positive on June 17 and 24 more found infected since then. All of them were sent to Covid hospital for treatment, he said adding that the facility was sealed and sanitization was on.

A woman at the shelter home was found Covid positive in random testing following which tests were ramped up and 57 inmates were found to be infected. As per health authorities, she might be the source of infection.

Pregnancy does not dilute gravity of charges against Safoora: Delhi Police

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @New Delhi

OPPOSING the bail plea of student activist Safoora Zargar, the Delhi Police on Monday told the Delhi High Court that her pregnancy does not dilute the gravity of the offence alleged against her.

Zargar was arrested on April 10 and has been charged under the stringent Unlawful Activities Prevention Act (UAPA) for her alleged role in the Northeast Delhi riots that broke out in February. The M.Phil. student from Jamia Millia Islamia is over four-month pregnant.

In its status report, police opposed her prayer saying Zargar is receiving adequate medical care in Tihar Jail where 39 deliveries have taken place in the last 10 years. "The severity of the offence committed by Zargar can in no way be mitigated by the factum of her pregnancy and the UAPA makes no distinction with regard to those arrested under this law," the report submitted.

The court adjourned her bail plea after Solicitor General Tushar Mehta took time for more instructions. It will now be heard on Tuesday.

Earlier, police said that no exemption was granted to pregnant inmates accused of heinous offences when it came to bail. "To the contrary, law provides for adequate safeguard and medical attention during their custody in jail," the report stated, adding that she is lodged in a separate cell and is being attended by the doctors, apart from being given a good diet and required medicines. "In fact, more care and caution are being practised in jail so far as social distancing norms are concerned that would be available to her outside," said the report.

Indian embassy staffers return via Wagah

NEW DELHI/CHANDIGARH: Five officials of the Indian High Commission in Pakistan, including the two arrested for their alleged involvement in a hit -and-run case, returned to India via the Wagah border on Saturday.

Sources said that the two arrested officials had injury marks on their face, neck and thighs indicating they were tortured during their 12-hour custody. The duo was detained by Pakistani intelligence agencies on June 15. The action was seen as a tit-for-tat measure by Pakistan after India arrested two Pakistan High Commission officials on charges of espionage and sent them back.

According to sources, the Pakistani intelligence agencies blindfolded and handcuffed them. "They were interrogated for 12 hours by a team of at least 10 men," sources said, adding that they were pressured to confess to their involvement in the hit-and-run case.

According to sources, the Pakistani authorities tortured them to make them confess about their involvement in intelligence gathering activities in the Indian High Commission. The duo was also taken for a medical check up before they were released, they said. ENS

Thackeray Jr opposes mining near Tadoba

SUDHIR SURYAWANSHI @Mumbai

THE Maharashtra government has opposed the Centre's proposal of mining at a site near Tadoba-Andhari Tiger reserve, saying it is an environment sensitive zone and need to be protected.

Environment minister Aaditya Thackeray wrote to Union environment minister Prakash Javdekar asking not to allow auction of mining blocks of the site near Tadoba-Andheri.

The proposed mining site is just 12.25km from Tadoba in Chandrapur. The Centre has granted permission for mining in 1,620 hectares of land. Green activists say mining near Tadoba reserve will not only spell the doom for tigers but also pose health hazard to the people who are staying nearby.

In his letter, Aaditya said that they cannot afford damage and destruction of the wildlife corridor. "Twice in 1999 and 2011, the auction had been scrapped after evaluation. Then why once again must we waste time and energy over a futile process when we know that it will destroy the wildlife corridor of Tadoba and Andhari?" Aaditya wrote.

Later, he tweeted that almost a decade ago, the then MoEF minister Jairam Ramesh had stopped destruction of the area. "I urge Prakash Javdekar*ji* to protect this area again."

'India unlikely to beat pandemic before Sept end'

RICHA SHARMA @New Delhi

INDIA is yet to achieve a steady pattern in Covid spread and it is unlikely to get rid of coronavirus before the end of September, according to an IIT-Kharagpur prediction system.

Prof. Abhijit Das of IIT-Kharagpur has developed a logistic model which can be used to fit the available daily counts of the infection. The model predicts the future spread of Covid thereby helping in decision making in health-care, industry, economy, and even academics.

A study like this based on a clear statistical model will enable them (people) to understand and plan their way forward

Prof. VK Tewari, Director, IIT-Kharagpur

The data used for the predictions pertain to the entire country, and for the eight most affected states including Maharashtra, Tamil Nadu, Delhi, Gujarat, UP, Rajasthan, West Bengal and MP.

"Our study indicates that India is yet to achieve a steady pattern in the spread of the disease. It is unlikely to get rid of Covid before the end of September. This does not leave us in a region of comfort, but the reality has to be accepted, and appropriate plans must be chalked out to address all the issues associated with the outbreak of the pandemic," said Das.

The system uses only the daily infection counts available in the public domain without accessing sensitive information pertaining to medical records or contact-tracing data for a large fraction of the population.

However, the predictions change quite rapidly with time. "People have been living in an uncertain black box without the knowledge about which way life is going to turn and how to plan their activities. A study like this based on a clear statistical model will enable them to understand and plan their way forward," Prof. Virendra Kumar Tewari, Director IIT-Kharagpur said.

Job scheme for urban areas soon

MUKESH RANJAN @Ranchi

An employment guarantee scheme for urban unskilled workers on the line of Mahatma Gandhi National Rural Employment Guarantee Scheme will be rolled out in Jharkhand very soon.

Officials in the Urban development department claimed that Mukhyamantri SHRAMIK (Shahri Rozgar Manjuri for Kamgar) Yojna, a brainchild of Chief Minister Hemant Soren, will not only ensure 100 days of paid work for unskilled workers in urban areas but will also provide unemployment allowance to those who don't get work under the scheme within 15 days.

The government is also working on software with the help of National Informatics Centre (NIC) for the scheme. Registered workers in the scheme will also get job cards like the ones enrolled in the MGNREGS.

"The scheme has been already been formulated and the process of approval has also been started. In anticipation of approval, we have started developing software and it will be ready within a month or two following which the process of giving job card could be started," said Urban Development Secretary Vinay Kumar Choubey.

Though no timeline has been fixed for implementing this scheme, but efforts are being made to launch it as soon as possible, he added.

That joyful declaration came from Juan Manuel Ballestero, an Argentine sailor who, unable to fly home from Portugal due to the pandemic, crossed the ocean alone in 85 days in his modest sailboat to see his aging parents. "I did it! I did it! I did it!" Ballestero said at dockside last week when he reached his hometown, Mar del Plata.

White House prepares for autumn wave as big Covid surge jolts world

Biggest daily rise in global cases reported, reflecting more testing as well as broader infection

WASHINGTON

WHITE House trade adviser Peter Navarro said on Sunday that the Donald Trump administration is preparing for possible second wave for Covid-19 infections this autumn.

"We are filling the stockpile in anticipation of a possible problem in the fall," he said on CNN's State of the Union, referring to medical equipment and supplies.

His statement comes as 29 states and territories in the country saw an increase in new cases on a seven-day average after lockdowns were lifted, the Washington Post reported.

Meanwhile, the World Health Organizaton recorded on Sunday the largest single-day increase in global coronavirus cases by its count, at more than 183,000 new cases in the latest 24 hours.

The UN health agency said Brazil led the way with 54,771 cases tallied and the US next at 36,617. Over 15,400 came in in India. Experts said rising case counts can reflect multiple factors including more widespread testing as well as broader infection.

Over the last two weeks, cases have risen by 15% in the US, mostly in the south, west and midwest, the New York Times said. California reported 4,515 new cases on Sunday, a record high for the prosperous state.

"We're seeing the positivity rates go up. That's a clear indication there is now community spread underway, and this isn't just a function of testing more," Dr. Scott Gottlieb, ex-commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration, told CBS.

The US has the world's highest number of infections, over 22 lakh, and the highest death toll, at about 1.2 lakh.

Druids disappointed

In England, lockdown restrictions prevented druids, pagans and party-goers on Sunday from watching the sun rise at the ancient circle of Stonehenge to mark the summer solstice, the longest day of the year in the Northern Hemisphere. English Heritage, which runs the site, livestreamed it instead. A few people gathered outside the fence.

"You can't cancel the sunrise," druid Arthur Pendragon told the BBC.

Brazil's Health Ministry said the total number of cases had risen by more than 50,000 in a day. South Africa reported a one-day high of almost 5,000 new infections on Saturday and 46 deaths. AP

Paris throws off mask for post-lockdown party

Social distancing and face masks were largely forgotten as thousands of French people danced and partied in the first big blow out since the lockdown. Despite a ban on gatherings of more than 10 people, thousands thronged the trendy Canal Saint Martin and the Marais districts of Paris late Sunday.

Pak out of options as poverty & cases rise dramatically

ISLAMABAD

THE coronavirus is spreading in Pakistan at one of the fastest rates in the world, and overwhelmed hospitals are turning away patients. But the government is pushing ahead with opening up the country, trying to salvage a near-collapsed economy where millions have already slid into poverty from pandemic restrictions.

Further complicating the dilemma, as the government pins its main hope for stemming the virus' rampage on social distancing and masks, many in the public ignore calls to use them.

Millions crowd markets and mosques. Hard-line clerics tell followers to trust that faith will protect them. Many call the virus a hoax. Even some government officials dismiss warnings, saying traffic accidents kill more people.

The rate of new cases in Pakistan leaped from around 2,000-3,000 a day in late May to as high as 6,800 a day in mid-June. Deaths are nearing 150 a day. So far, more than 180,000 people have been infected.

Pakistan had butted heads with the WHO over the spike. The organisation urged the government to alternate between two weeks of lockdown and two weeks of opening.

The government rejected the proposal. One lawmaker this week even accused the WHO of "imperialism" in dictating to Pakistan.

PM Imran Khan said the refusal to impose a complete lockdown saved the country from economic collapse.

"Pakistan is officially in a recession," said Haroon Sharif, a former economic adviser who still counsels the prime minister on economic issues. The number of people living in poverty has risen to 40% from 30% since the pandemic began. Massive job losses could spark unrest, Sharif warned.

Health workers are being infected at an alarming rate — over 3,000 so far. AP

US, Russia hold nuclear weapon talks with little hope of accord

VIENNA

The United States and Russia are meeting Monday in Vienna for talks on their last major nuclear weapons agreement against a backdrop of growing tensions and differences over whether they see any value in arms control at all.

US President Donald Trump insists that China should be involved in the talks on New START, the treaty that caps US and Russian nuclear warheads, because he says up until now Beijing has had a free pass to do as it likes in developing weapon systems.

China has shown no sign of being interested, giving Washington fresh cause for complaint, although critics say the US finds that a useful stick with which to beat its growing rival.

The delegations made no statement when they arrived at 8:30am (0630 GMT) at the Niederoesterreich Palace in the Austrian capital where the talks are taking place.

Daryl Kimball, executive director of the Washington-based Arms Control Association, said the insistence on including China showed the Trump administration was not serious about an accord.

"The only conclusion I can come to is that... the Trump administration (does) not intend to extend New START and is seeking to display China's disinterest in trilateral arms control talks as a cynical excuse to allow New START to expire," Kimball said.

US ambassador Marshall Billingslea and Russian Deputy Foreign Minister Sergei Ryabkov are nonetheless to discuss the future of the New START treaty, which was agreed in 2010 and expires in Feb 2021. AFP

Google ad sales to dip as digital market becomes triopoly: Tracker

WASHINGTON

GOOGLE is expected to see its first decline in US ad revenues this year as the coronavirus pandemic hits travel advertising, a market tracker said on Monday.

Research by eMarketer indicates Google will still be leading digital advertising but with a smaller share as the market evolves into a "triopoly" with Facebook and Amazon.

Google's net US digital ad revenues will drop 5.3 percent to $39.58 billion to bring its market share down to 29.4 percent, according to the eMarketer forecast which was sharply revised due to the pandemic.

Google's decline is "primarily because of a sharp pullback in travel advertiser spending, which in the past has been heavily concentrated on Google's search ad products," said eMarketer analyst Nicole Perrin. "Travel has been the hardest-hit industry during the pandemic, with the most extreme spending declines of any industry. E-commerce-related ad spending has also been dampened to some extent: Amazon reportedly pulled its ads from Google search earlier this year as it struggled to meet customer demand for its e-commerce services."

A big part of the decline will come from "search advertising," or paid messages deployed by Google when a user enters a search query. AFP

Wirecard in Enron-style scandal over missing billions

Text: AFP

In what could be one of the biggest financial frauds of recent years, German payments provider Wirecard admitted 1.9 billion euros that auditors say are missing from its accounts likely "do not exist"

€1.9 bn
supposedly sitting in trust accounts in the Philippines made up a quarter of the company's balance sheet. But "on the basis of further examination... there is a prevailing likelihood that the bank trust account balances in the amount of 1.9 billion EUR do not exist," Wirecard said Monday

FROM PIPING PORN CASH TO BECOMING FINTECH DARLING

The scandal marks a fall from grace for the Bavarian start-up, set up in 1999 and riding a global wave of electronic payments to become the darling of the fintech scene

From humble beginnings piping cash to porn and gambling sites, the firm entered the prestigious DAX 30 with great fanfare in 2018 after elbowing out traditional lender Commerzbank

RESULTS WITHDRAWN

Wirecard, which employs nearly 6,000 people, has for now withdrawn its preliminary results for 2019 and the first quarter of this year as well as financial targets for 2025

1 year
The scandal was uncovered over a year of reporting, especially by the Financial Times, on accounting irregularities in the company's Asian division

ENRON PARALLELS

Now Wirecard's name is more frequently heard in association with Enron. The Texan energy company's early-2000s collapse featuring accounting fraud, complicit auditors and political connections shook the US economy

There could well be further revelations to come in the Wirecard scandal. The missing cash was held to cover risks in trading supposedly carried out by third parties on Wirecard's behalf

Trump open to meeting Venezuela's Maduro, not happy with Juan Guaido

WASHINGTON

THE president US President Donald Trump has said he would consider meeting Venezuelan President Nicolas Maduro and indicated that he is not entirely confident in the country's opposition leader, according to an interview published on Sunday.

A power struggle has been raging in Venezuela since Juan Guaido declared himself acting president in January 2019 in a bid to oust Maduro, who had started a second term following elections boycotted by the opposition and internationally dismissed as fraudulent.

Nearly 60 countries – including the United States -- recognized Guaido, but China and Russia backed Maduro -- whose regime has been hit by sanctions from Washington.

But despite tensions, Trump told news site Axios he would be open to a meeting.

"I would maybe think about that... Maduro would like to meet. And I'm never opposed to meetings -- you know, rarely opposed to meetings," the president said.

"I always say, you lose very little with meetings. But at this moment, I've turned them down."

China trade deal

Trump also said in the interview that he held off on imposing sanctions on Chinese officials over the mass incarceration of Muslim minorities in Xinjiang to protect US-China trade negotiations

Activists say China has rounded up at least one million Uighurs and other Turkic peoples and is trying to forcibly assimilate them by wiping out their culture and punishing basic Islamic practices.

Beijing counters that it is running vocational educational centers that offer an alternative to Islamic extremism, but the issue has shaken US-China ties, which were already troubled by a bitter trade dispute. When asked why he has held off on direct sanctions on Chinese officials linked to Xinjiang, Trump said: "Well, we were in the middle of a major trade deal." AFP

Adani Power board approves delisting plan

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

THE Board of Directors of Adani Power Ltd (APL) on Monday approved a proposal to delist the company from the stock exchanges. The proposal had been first introduced by one of APL's promoter companies — Adani Properties Private Ltd (APPL) — late last month. The company will now seek its shareholders nod on the proposal through a postal ballot, the company said in an exchange filing.

APPL had proposed a floor price of ₹33.82 per share, and would pick up buy 96.53 crore equity shares currently with the public for about ₹3,264 crore. APPL had said it intends to, "either by itself or together with other members of the Promoter Group", acquire all the equity shares of APL. Shares of the company had closed at Rs 38.20 a piece on BSE on Monday, up 0.53 per cent from the previous close.

According to data on the stock exchanges, the promoter group collectively holds 289,16,12,567 equity shares of the company representing 74.97 per of the paid-up equity share capital, while public shareholders control the rest of the 25.03 per cent.

While the proposal had first been taken up by the Board early this month, there had been no final decision taken. Instead, the Board had appointed a merchant banker to evaluate a proposal and conduct all due diligence. "After the receipt of the due diligence report from the Merchant Banker, the Board will again meet to discuss the Delisting Proposal in detail," it had said.

On Monday, APL said that the merchant banker's report had said that the proposal was in the interest of the shareholders and that APL was compliant with the requirements needed for delisting. Consequently, it said that its Board had approved "the delisting proposal and consequent voluntary delisting of equity shares of the company from stock exchanges subject to receipt of approvals."

CAPACITY

The company has a power generation capacity of 12,410 megawatts across six states in India. The company has said delisting will enhance the company's operational, financial and strategic flexibility

YES Bank to skip interest payment on bonds

The private lender said RBI has rejected its request for payment of interest dues citing lower capital adequacy ratio

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ Hyderabad

THE Reserve Bank of India (RBI) has barred Yes Bank from paying interest on the upper tier II bonds citing lower capital adequacy ratio.

The bank said it won't be honouring the payment for now, but the interest amount due and remaining unpaid shall be accumulated and paid later, subject to the lender complying with the stipulated regulatory requirements.

In a disclosure with exchanges, Yes Bank said it sought the banking regulator's nod to pay interest due as on June 29, 2020 against its unsecured non-convertible bonds carrying coupon of 10.25 per cent.

"Reserve Bank of India has expressed its inability to accede to bank's request for payment of interest dues since the bank does not meet the minimum capital requirements currently," the bank said in its disclosure. As on March 2020, the private lender's overall capital adequacy ratio stood at 8.5 per cent, while common equity tier I (CET I) was at 6.3 per cent and tier II ratio was at 2 per cent following the capital infusion from private and public sector lenders early this year.

"We refer to our earlier communication dated 27 May, 2020, wherein we had inter alia informed that as the capital to risk assets ratio (CRAR) of the bank is below regulatory requirement, and the bank has filed an application with Reserve Bank of India (RBI) seeking approval for payment of interest due as on 29 June, 2020, for the captioned upper tier II bonds," the bank said.

It may be noted that earlier Yes Bank said it plans to raise equity capital to enhance capital adequacy ratio and support growth. In fact, its shareholders' too have approved a plan to raise up to ₹15,000 crore capital from markets as well from internal sources. The bank also disclosed plans to bump up capital from recoveries and resolution of stressed assets besides the proceeds from sale of assets.

Last month, Yes Bank's chief executive officer (CEO) Prashant Kumar announced that the bank will raise ₹10,000-12,000 crore as early as possible via a follow-on public offer or a rights issue or a qualified institutional placement. The bank counts several public and private lenders as its shareholders including SBI, HDFC, ICICI Bank, Kotak Mahindra Bank, Bandhan Bank, Federal Bank, and IDFC First Bank who have collectively invested ₹10,000 crore in it.

We refer to our earlier communication dated 27 May wherein we had said the capital to risk assets ratio of the bank is below regulatory requirement

Exports show green shoots after hitting new lows: Goyal

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

INDIA's exports have started to show signs of recovery, after falling steadily in April due to the covid-19-led restrictions imposed on international borders, said commerce and industry minister Piyush Goyal.

"Currently, we are about 10-12 per cent down. So in a sense, we have reached up to 88-90 per cent of the level of exports that we had in June 2019 in the first two weeks of this month. I am awaiting data for the third week (of June)," Goyal said, while speaking at the Confederation of Indian Industry's Horasis India Meet.

In May, exports shrank 36.47 per cent to $19.05 billion compared to a 60 per cent contraction in April, primarily due to cancellation of orders. In fact, exports remained subdued even during the last financial year ended March because of protectionism, among various other factors. It declined 58.7 per cent in March. Now with just two weeks left, June exports are likely to be almost as the same level as last year.

The Federation of Indian Export Organisations (FIEO) said that there is a drastic arrest in fall of exports compared to April but recovery will be slow due to globally slowing economy.

"Revival still seems to be a very slow process as the global business sentiments are at its lowest, impacting the supply chain and bringing slump or recessionary conditions in the economies across the world," the federation said.

Commenting on subsidies, Goyal said that the focus is on sustainable growth and not on giving "handouts" for export industry, which would not help exporters in the long run.

He further said that India has made up its mind that we are going to only accept good quality products. Even if a domestic quality product is a bit costlier than imported one, it is sensible to buy Indian item, he said, adding that going forward, people could have to pay a "terrible price" if they don't buy quality Indian goods. India has already tightened its FDI norms for countries it shares land border with.

Imports fell by 51.1 per cent in May resulting in a trade deficit of just $3.2 billion.

'Lift ban on exports of PPE kits to boost sales'

BINITA JAISWAL @ Chennai

APPAREL exporters have expressed concern on the ban imposed on export of PPE kits, stating that the industry is losing business to countries like Pakistan, Vietnam and Bangladesh.

According to Apparel Export Promotion Council (AEPC), Pakistan has received $100 million export orders last week which is likely to go up to $500 million. Bangladesh, too, has, protected its global business from countries such as the US, Nepal, Sri Lanka and Kuwait. These countries have lifted ban on PPE kits orders, post which they have bagged huge orders. Domestic manufacturers, on the other hand, have been losing despite its export advantages.

Taking note of the scenario, the AEPC has requested the Centre to lift the ban order at the earliest for the benefit of the industry. AEPC chairman A Sakthivel said that manufacturers in India are currently producing over 8 lakh PPE kits per day, which is much higher than the domestic requirement. "The global market for PPEs is estimated to be more than $60 billion over the next five years and we have the capability to grab a lion's share of it. Due to the ban order, however, our manufacturers are not able to accept export orders and countries like Pakistan and Indonesia are being benefitted," said Sakthivel.

Over 700 manufacturers in a span of four months have managed to reach from zero to 8 lakh PPE suits per day. "If the ban order is lifted, we can easily export to European Union and other countries and gain good business," he said.

The US Federal Emergency Management Agency has created an 'air bridge' to get medical supplies, like 22.5 lakh PPEs exported from Vietnam. India is also part of this initiative and "we should not be losing out... India should consider the economic and political dividends that timely PPE exports will generate in the post-covid era," APEC noted.

Fuel may well be govt's only steady income

WHILE rising inflation is always a concern when fuel prices hit record highs, the Centre and state governments both are also facing an unprecedented shortfall in tax revenues from other sources. Fuel may well be the government's only "sure-shot" source of income at this time.

In fact, the reason why fuel prices stand at record highs at a time when crude oil rates are over 40% cheaper than their January level is due to mammoth excise duty hikes implemented since mid-March—a cumulative ₹13 a litre on petrol and ₹16 alitre on diesel. With demand rising and crude prices firming up, OMCs have been forced to pass on the duty hikes to protect profit margins. "It is being done from the point of view of protecting revenue. GST collections have been falling since services have ground to a halt... So, fuel becomes one of the few 'sure shot' avenues to earn income," noted Madan Sabnavis, chief economist, CARE Ratings.

As reported earlier, TNIE's calculations indicate that the Centre has earned over Rs 15,950 crore in additional revenue since mid-March due to the excise duty increase. If left unchanged, the tax hikes are likely to result in over Rs 1.5 lakh crore in additional revenue for the current fiscal year 2020-21.

India lucrative for firms seeking China alternative

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

WITH companies looking at a "China-plus one" strategy in wake of the COVID-19 pandemic, India presents an "attractive" opportunity as a manufacturing destination with availability of skilled labour force and young consumer base, a senior HMD Global executive said on Monday.

"There is an ambition of making India a global hub for mobile devices specifically, and what COVID-19 has done has kind of accelerated the process...COVID-19 has driven companies to follow the China-plus one strategy when it comes to manufacturing and supply chain," HMD Global vice-president — corporate business development Ajey Mehta said at CII's Horasis India Meeting. HMD Global sells mobile phones under Nokia brand.

"We already have the demographic dividend of a young consumer base. Added to that, India's low per capita income and the skilled labour makes it a really attractive destination for companies to come in set up units," Mehta added.

Smartphone usage has gone up by almost two hours per day in India, and data consumption has risen by 30 per cent as people work and study from home.

On collaboration with countries like Vietnam, which is among major manufacturing hubs apart from China, for mobile manufacturing, Mehta said, it is impossible to develop products in isolation from other countries for any industry.

"There needs to be deep collaboration with countries in the supply chain, there needs to be a global supply chain system to deliver products. So even if you're manufacturing in any one place, you have to rely on other places for the manufacturing," he added.

WAIS MAN'S TALE

One among the 50 refugee athletes named by IOC, cyclist Badreddin Wais Ahmad tells Swaroop Swaminathan about his journey from war-ravaged Syria to Tokyo Olympics...

ILLUSTRATION: TAPAS RANJAN

ON June 3, 2016, the modern Olympics movement had one of its most significant developments. Even though it had been in the works for months, the International Olympic Committee (IOC) officially confirmed that 'ten refugee athletes' will compete at Rio de Janeiro. They "will act as a symbol of hope for refugees worldwide and bring global attention to the magnitude of the refugee crisis when they take part in the Olympic Games Rio this summer", the body said in a press release.

The initiative was an unqualified success, so the IOC looked at increasing the number of competitors from 10 to around 50 at the Tokyo Games. Apropos, the IOC, on the occasion of World Refugee Day on June 20, 2019, announced a list of 'current 50 refugee athlete scholarship-holders' (inclusion on this list is the first step towards making the actual IOC Refugee Olympic Team Tokyo 2020).

Badreddin Wais Ahmad was one among the 50 in that list. Last week, during a special live workout session organised by the Olympic Channel, Wais was all smiles. Living in Lausanne, the cyclist is counting down the days to compete in Tokyo. Even though it's postponed by a year, he gives a positive spin. "It gives me an extra year to prepare," he says to this daily.

That perspective comes naturally to athletes like Wais. In 2014, competing at the Olympics was not a thought he was entertaining. Back then, he was fighting for survival. In the literal sense.

"You do know I'm wanted in Syria, right?" he says in the middle of this 50-minute long conversation.

****

Even though this is the story of the athlete born in Aleppo in January 1991, this is really the story of all athletes in the Refugee Olympic Team.

One of the best cyclists to emerge from Syria, he competed at the men's junior World Championships in Moscow in 2009 (individual time trial). The country wasn't exactly known for its cycling history but Wais, who took to the sport when he was 14, wanted to show Syria the possibilities in the sport.

His best laid plans though were halted by the atrocities of war. He continued to race even after war broke out in 2012 but training in such a situation was dangerous. It's a word that keeps coming up during the conversation.

Even as his family fled to Turkey, he continued to train in Damascus through 2013 and the starting of 2014. But after some time, the inevitable happened. "I knew I had to go," he says.

So he began a dangerous journey from Damascus to Lausanne via Lebanon, Turkey and Greece. He is one among scores of people to have been on a boat going from Turkey to Greece. "Those were very, very tough moments in my life," he says. It also included lying low in Turkey, getting a new passport and hoping the Swiss government would issue the necessary papers for him to stay there.

This journey in 2014 left him emotionally shattered and physically tired. The immediate consequence was his career was put on hold as he tried to reassemble his life (he didn't compete from June 2014 to September 2017).

Quite naturally, he hasn't been to Syria since leaving the country some six years ago. "I am wanted by the military," he explains. He is wanted because it is compulsory for Syrian men between 18 to 42 to serve in the military. "Those who evade service," The Atlantic magazine noted in 2018, "face imprisonment and forcible conscription." "So, yeah, I cannot go back," he says.

****

After not training for more than a year, he again got on his bike in the end of 2015. "I could not do anything in Lausanne in those initial few months," he remembers. "I had to wait for the papers to come through."

> Those were very, very tough moments in my life (travelling from Greece to Turkey on a boat)... I am wanted by the military (Syrian). So, yeah, I cannot go back (to Aleppo, his hometown).
>
> Badreddin Wais Ahmad, Syrian cyclist

Once it did, he got back in the saddle. Muscle memory took over as he finished 60th in the individual Time Trial event at the World Championships in Bergen (Norway) in 2017. His story was so inspirational that international news agencies made a beeline to speak to him during the media day of the event in Norway.

With an established training routine and some semblance of normal life, he took part in six international meets — including the Worlds in Innsbruck in Austria where he finished 53rd — in 2018.

His biggest achievement on the road, though, came in 2019. "I took part in the Asian Cycling Championships in Gazalkent (Uzbekistan) where I finished ninth (individual time trial) and 31st (road race).

With those results, he spoke to Gonzalo Barrio, the project manager of the refugee athletes programme. As they say, the rest is history.

Will he wear a jersey with 'SYRIA' emblazoned across it next July? "That's the hope," he smiles.

IPL SPONSORSHIP

Tough to match Vivo sum: Experts

VENKATA KRISHNA B @Chennai

THE Indian Premier League's Governing Council meets this week to review sponsorship deals including title sponsor Vivo's, in the wake of the border stand-off with China. They have a huge task. With three years remaining in Vivo's five-year deal, nearly ₹1,320 crore is at stake as market experts keep monitoring developments.

In 2017, Vivo acquired IPL title rights for ₹2,199 crore for five years, which comes to ₹440 crore annually. However, recent developments at the border have forced BCCI and IPL GC to review existing deals.

Santosh N, managing partner of D and P India advisory LLP and external advisor of Duff and Phelps India Pvt Ltd, which has studied brand IPL for six years, has this to say: "I'm not sure how soon BCCI will be looking to get somebody on board, in the scenario of Vivo going out. I'm sure BCCI will be able to find someone, as cricket is the most sought after (sport). But whether it will be a premium to Vivo's bid amount or at a discount is what we have to see. There will be a challenge in terms of value, but it won't be difficult to get a replacement."

Apart from Vivo, IPL has seen Chinese smartphone brands Oppo, Xiaomi, Realme and OnePlus taking up prime ad slots. They spend nearly ₹500 crore annually. Duff & Phelps in 2019 valued the IPL ecosystem at ₹47,500 crore.

"The way we estimated is based on the league's growing potential and the cash flow it's expected to generate. One season getting cancelled will impact the valuation. However, if the season doesn't get cancelled and goes ahead without crowds, the impact won't be much because you are losing ₹2 crore from ticket sales and may be another ₹2 crore from FMCG sales, which is nothing for the IPL," said Santosh.

"Because of the current scenario, IPL could also benefit. People are forced to be indoors and movies are not releasing. So more and more might watch IPL if it happens in September. Viewership numbers might get bigger. Which means, more advertisers will be interested. This is also a scenario," he added.

Not all are convinced. Sandeep Goyal, chairman of Mumbai-based marketing and communication firm Mogae Media, believes terminating Vivo's contract won't be easy just because there is sentiment in favour of boycotting Chinese products.

"In the current economic climate, to look for someone paying ₹440 crore is a challenge. The substitute could be another mobile brand. But last year, Vivo's sister brand Oppo walked out of the sponsorship of Indian cricket team. That's how Byju's came in and they are owned by Tencent, another Chinese brand. The most visible advertisers are all Chinese. IPL has lost sponsors in the past like Pepsi because of fixing, but this situation is different. You don't know if IPL will happen, and it won't be as interactive without fans. So a replacement may not be willing to pay the same amount. It will be theoretically impossible," he said.

Wind turbine sounds do not affect health

MYTH

HELSINKI: The low-frequency, inaudible sounds made by wind power stations are not damaging to human health despite widespread fears that they cause unpleasant symptoms, research published in Finland on Monday said.

A number of studies have already concluded that the audible noise from the energy-generating windmills does not cause health impacts beyond annoyance and sleep disturbance in people living close by.

However, the project, commissioned by the government, examined the impact of low-frequency emissions which cannot be picked up by the human ear. People in many countries have blamed the infrasound waves for symptoms ranging from headaches and nausea to tinnitus and cardiovascular problems.

Scientists used interviews, sound recordings and laboratory tests to explore possible health effects on people living within 20 kilometres (12 miles) of the generators.

Yet the findings "do not support the hypothesis that infrasound is the element in turbine sound that causes annoyance," researchers said, adding: "It is likely that these symptoms are triggered by other factors such as symptom expectancy."

Tests also found no evidence that wind turbine sounds affected heart rates. Wind power can be one of the cheapest forms of renewable energy and has spread widely in recent years, not least in China, the United States and Brazil.

Opponents of the windmills, which can stand up to 140 metres high, argue they blight the landscape and have an adverse effect on the well-being of people living in the vicinity.

EXFILE

SMELL A RAT

Scientists in the United States have for the first time created an electrical signature perceived as an odour in the brains of mice — even though the smell did not exist. A look at the experiment...

PURPOSE

The experiment was done to decode how mammals' brains perceive odours and distinguish smells from each other.

EXPERIMENT

The researchers designed experiments around mice that had been genetically engineered so their brain cells could be activated by shining a light on them using an optical fiber — a technique called optogenetics. The experiments centered on the olfactory bulb, a structure that is located behind the nose in animals and in humans.

INFERENCE

Scientists were able to subtly change the timing and mix of activated nerve bundles to tease out which were most important — in other words, what aspects of a smell most define it and differentiate it from other smells.

The team found that switching around the order of nerve bundles that are activated early in a smell sequence led to as much as a 30 per cent loss in smell recognition.

Making changes to the nerves that are activated later in the sequence had a much weaker effect, leading to only a five per cent drop in smell recognition.

HOW DOES IT WORK

Molecules linked to scents trigger cell receptors in the nose, which then pass on an electrical signal to nerve-ending bundles in the bulb called glomeruli. These signals are finally sent on to neurons in the brain.

The team trained the mice to recognise a synthetic smell signal they created by using light to activate six nerve bundles in a particular order — rewarding them with water when they pushed a lever after perceiving the "odour."

If they pushed the lever after a different set of nerve bundles were activated, they received no water.

In facial recognition, for example, the brain can recognise people based on visual cues, such as the eyes, even without seeing someone's nose and ears. But these distinguishing features, as recorded by the brain, have yet to be found for each smell.

Lockdown increases poaching in Asia, Africa

Illegal hunting fuelled by food shortages and decline in law enforcement in some wildlife protection areas concern authorities

MORE MISERY

NEW DELHI: A camera trap photo of an injured tigress and a forensic examination of its carcass revealed why the creature died: a poacher's wire snare punctured its windpipe and sapped its strength as the wound festered for days.

Snares like this one set in southern India's dense forest have become increasingly common amid the coronavirus pandemic, as people left jobless turn to wildlife to make money and feed their families.

Authorities in India are concerned this spike in poaching not only could kill more endangered tigers and leopards but also species these carnivores depend upon to survive.

"It is risky to poach, but if pushed to the brink, some could think that these are risks worth taking," said Mayukh Chatterjee, a wildlife biologist with the non-profit Wildlife Trust of India.

Since the country announced its lockdown, at least four tigers and six leopards have been killed by poachers, Wildlife Protection Society of India said. But there also were numerous other poaching casualties — gazelles in grasslands, foot-long giant squirrels in forests, wild boars and birds such as peacocks and purple morhens.

In many parts of the developing world, coronavirus lockdowns have sparked concern about increased illegal hunting that's fuelled by food shortages and a decline in law enforcement in some wildlife protection areas. At the same time, border closures and travel restrictions slowed illegal trade in certain high-value species.

One of the biggest disruptions involves the endangered pangolin. Often caught in parts of Africa and Asia, the anteater-like animals are smuggled mostly to China and Southeast Asia, where their meat is considered a delicacy and scales are used in traditional medicine.

In April, the Wildlife Justice Commission reported traders were stockpiling pangolin scales in several Southeast Asia countries awaiting an end to the pandemic. Rhino horn is being stockpiled in Mozambique, the report said, and ivory traders in Southeast Asia are struggling to sell the stockpiles amassed since China's 2017 ban on trade in ivory products. The pandemic compounded their plight because many Chinese customers were unable to travel to ivory markets in Cambodia and other countries. "They are desperate to get it off their hands. Nobody wants to be stuck with that product," said Sarah Stoner, director of intelligence for the commission.

The illegal trade in pangolins continued "unabated" within Africa but international trade has been disrupted by port closures, said Ray Jansen, chairman of the African Pangolin Working Group. "We have witnessed some trade via air while major ship routes are still closed but we expect a flood of trade once shipping avenues reopen again," Jansen said.

Fears that organised poaching in Africa would spike largely have not materialised — partly because ranger patrols have continued in many national parks and reserves. There are also signs of increased poaching in Asia.

E-commerce recovers

BACK TO BUSINESS

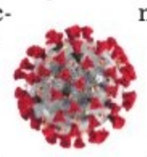
Sales volume in the e-commerce sector in India has recovered by over 90 per cent as compared to its pre-lockdown level, said a report on Monday. The sector is predicted to fully recover and achieve the pre-lockdown order volume by the end of this month, according to the consumer trend analysis by Unicommerce, one of India's leading e-commerce focused supply chain SaaS (software-as-a service) platform. "The e-commerce sector continues to lead the growth for the overall economy of India. The increasing change in consumer behaviour to prefer online shopping has come as a great surprise and relief," Kapil Makhija, CEO, Unicommerce said in a statement.

WHO: Lack of global leadership showing

FEAR OF SECOND WAVE

DUBAI: The World Health Organization sent out a fresh warning on Monday over the dangers of the new coronavirus even as France returned to life by staging an annual music festival and sending millions of children back to school.

In spite of numerous European countries further easing their lockdown restrictions, cases around the world are rising especially in Latin America with Brazil now registering over 50,000 deaths.



There are also fears of a second wave with Australians being warned against travelling to Melbourne. "The pandemic is still accelerating," WHO's director general Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus told the virtual health forum organised by Dubai in the UAE.

"We know that the pandemic is much more than a health crisis, it is an economic crisis, a social crisis and in many countries a political crisis. Its effects will be felt for decades to come."

Ghebreyesus said the greatest threat facing the world is not the virus itself, which has now killed over 465,000 people and infected nearly nine million worldwide, but "the lack of global solidarity and global leadership". "We cannot defeat this pandemic with a divided world," he said. "The politicisation of the pandemic has exacerbated it."

Brazil falls into that bracket with President Jair Bolsonaro comparing the virus to a "little flu" and arguing that the economic impact of shutdowns is often worse than the virus itself. Brazil is the second worst-affected country behind the United States, another country where political infighting has prevented a unified policy to handle the virus.

The spread of Covid-19 is accelerating across Latin America, with Mexico, Peru and Chile also hard-hit as death tolls soar and healthcare facilities are pushed toward collapse.

Mexico City has delayed reopening markets, restaurants, malls, hotels and places of worship, with the country now recording over 20,000 Covid-19 deaths. Highlighting the region's woes, Peru passed 8,000 deaths on Sunday despite preparing to reopen shopping malls on Monday.

Virus' first all-atom model developed

NEW STUDY

LONDON: Scientists have produced the first open source all-atom models of full-length spike protein of the novel coronavirus that facilitates its entry into the host cells, an advance that may aid faster Covid-19 vaccine and antiviral drug development. The "spike" or S protein of SARS-CoV-2 virus that causes Covid-19 facilitates viral entry into host cells, according to the researchers, including those from the University of Cambridge.

This makes S protein the main target for vaccine and antiviral drug development, they said. Described in Physical Chemistry B, CHARMM-GUI is a programme that simulates complex biomolecular systems simply and quickly.

Scientists can use the models to conduct innovative and novel simulation research for the prevention and treatment of Covid19. The researchers first modelled the missing amino acid residues, and then other missing domains.

EARLY WINDOW

Classrooms empty, but US high schools get ready to welcome back fall sports

MISSION RESUMPTION

AUSTIN: High schools across the country are trying to figure out how and when students might return to classrooms this fall. Many are also making sure their star quarterbacks and other athletes will be in shape when they do.

While states have been easing the economic and social lockdowns prompted by the coronavirus pandemic, some are now letting high school athletes return for summer workouts before teachers have even figured out how they are going to hold classroom instruction.

In places like Texas and Florida, where the "Friday Night Lights" culture of high school football runs deep, strength and conditioning sessions are bringing thousands of athletes to school for workouts, even while those states are seeing record numbers of new cases and hospitalisations.

Some schools have already been sent scrambling when a player tests positive. At football powerhouse Arlington-Martin High School near Dallas, about 600 athletes attended the first day of summer conditioning programs June 8. That many kids, following state social distancing guidelines, were spread out over four athletic fields.

"It's 13 weeks since we've had an organized workout with our teams," coach Bob Wager said. "I think kids were excited to get out of the house."

Eight days later, those same fields were empty when the school suspended workouts after a student tested positive and Wager and his staff began the work of tracing all of the athletes and get everyone to quarantine. Wager's program was one of several Texas schools or districts to suspend workouts shortly after they started.

In places like Texas and Florida, strength and conditioning sessions are bringing thousands of athletes to high school for workouts | AP

Still, dozens of states have been welcoming back high school athletes for strength and conditioning programs, according to the National Federation of State High School Associations. And it's not just football. Other sports such as volleyball and basketball, baseball and soccer can participate. Marching bands, too. Iowa became the first state to resume competitive high school sports when baseball and softball teams began play June 15.

In all, tens of thousands of high school athletes are working out or playing games. With virus cases and hospitalisations rising in hot spots, their return is raising questions of whether it is too soon and risky.

Instead of focusing only on how to return to sports, high schools should at least consider not playing at all, said Kenneth Shropshire, professor and chief executive of the Global Sport Institute at Arizona State. "I'm on the extreme of make things as safe as possible ... Just wait. It's not that important. Even in Texas," Shropshire said.

BLOOMING THOUGHTS

Vidya Iyengar

At a time when art shows are going digital and works revolve around the current pandemic, Sadaanandan PK is attempting to give art lovers a peek into the old ways. His show, titled 'Taamara: The Genesis of Nature', one of the first 'regular' shows to be held in the city, is currently on at Gallery g on Lavelle Road.

Inspired by the lotus and its spiritual attributes, his solo show also has an underlying theme of the Upanishads. "But there is some link to the lockdown, with the art reflecting peace and stillness. The pandemic has shown us that we have to slow down, and somewhere in my work I've brought that in," says the senior artist, whose works have found place of pride in the homes of musician Ustaad Zakir Hussain, and celebrity designers Abu Jani and Sandeep Khosla. Two of his paintings have also been used in the Malayalam feature film Olu directed by Shaji N Karun. The Thrissur-based artist has been commended for the 3,000 sq ft mural painting at Sree Padmanabhaswamy Temple in Thiruvananthapuram. It was part of the restoration work at the temple between 1994 – 98.

Bold but not overpowering and exuberant yet subtle are how his strokes and use of colour are defined. "I use a lot of natural colours, especially blues and greens, which go with my works," he says about the 11 works that he has done. Sadaanandan is no stranger to a lockdown as he admits that once engrossed, he doesn't step out of his studio for 2-3 months. "I started this six months ago since the plan was to hold an exhibition in March," he says.

In this series, he uses natural colour on a variety of media, including canvas, wood panel and imported paper. While he started off as a mural artist, which he is still known for, a visit to the Ajanta and Ellora caves in the year 2000 became a turning point. "I was so influenced by the art work there that I started looking into nature landscape," says Sadaanandan, whose works involve huge mural paintings, with his 500 sq ft work at the third edition of Kochi Muziris Biennale becoming a talking point.

The show is on from 10am to 6pm, every day, until July 12 at Gallery g.

Stepping up for lung space

Bosky Khanna

Many eminent citizens have joined hands with commoners to save the prime lung space in Bengaluru – Cubbon Park – by urging to make it a 'No Traffic Zone'. Along with a signature campaign on Change.Org, members of Heritage Beku are also calling for awareness and attention of people. A letter petition is being sent to horticulture minister, BBMP Commissioner and all other stake holders to stop the entry of vehicles.

"Cubbon Park, just like Lalbagh, should be a no vehicle zone. For three months there was no traffic movement on the roads inside it and the environmental space has only improved. Now with proper planning with the traffic police and experts, alternative roads can be thought of and improved, but the entry of vehicles should be stopped," said architect Naresh Narasimhan.

In the campaign, citizens point that dramatic reduction in emissions and noise pollution has impacted flora, fauna and the city positively. Cubbon Park is a prominent piece of natural heritage in Bengaluru and it's the single largest public lung space in an increasingly polluted city. So it is critical that it be declared as a 'No Traffic Zone', which facilitates only pedestrians, cyclists, electric golf carts and events, including cultural events, said designer Prasad Bidapa.

With the increasing instances of noise pollution, trees being damaged, loss of bird habitat, rash driving and heritage space being damaged, soon Cubbon Park will become a barren, full fledged thoroughfare, increasingly encroached by buildings and vehicles, dotted with only a few token trees, the petitioners noted. "We understand the government may find this uphill and try and drag their feet, given that the park is so close to heavy thoroughfare at Vidhana Soudha, MS Buildings and Govt offices. Even the move to declare Cubbon Park Traffic free on Saturdays and Govt Public Holidays (in addition to existing Sunday's) had not been fully implemented by Traffic Police despite the Chief Secretary's agreement to this decision (sic)," the petition stated.

The petition has also got the backing of citizens like IISc professor Ashish Verma; retired Lokayukta Justice N Santosh Hegde; Sudeept Maiti, senior manager, Integrated Transport, WRI- India; transportation expert Vinobha Isaac; environmental consultant Luke Dhanaraj; architect and ecologist Neelam Manjunath; and Sonali Kulkarni, urban transport planner and director of Urbanmorph, BYCS-India.

The lockdown saw many a people do their bit for society through various voluntary initiatives. Some chose to cook and prepare food packets, others chose to distribute masks, sanitisers and other essentials to those in need. Akshata DC, on the other hand, chose to be a part of Bengaluru-based social enterprise GiftAbled's virtual volunteering initiative, and has spent the past couple of weeks playing mentor to a second-year degree student with visual impairments. Every week, the homemaker gets in touch with the student and guides him on lessons related to communication or soft skills. Like her, over 100 others have signed up to be a part of this programme, held in collaboration with Dharwad-based NGO Vidya Poshak.

Akshata DC

Sravanthi Tanakallu

Programme manager Sravanthi Tanakallu says the first batch of the programme, launched during the lockdown, saw over 100 mentors. The second, which was launched recently, as already seen 25 registrations. Explaining the process, she says, "We first hold an orientation programme to understand the mentor's interests and areas of expertise. We then map out the mentor-mentee pairs and set up a call between the two. Post that, we encourage them to mentor the student at least for an academic year." The idea emerged from a meeting with NGOs during this time, about what they require the most. Tanakallu is herself a part of the first batch and helps a student improve their spoken English through regular interactions. "The idea is to not take any decisions for them but to make them aware of their options and help them make their an informed choice," she says.

For Akshata, the opportunity doesn't just present a chance to teach a student but to also learn something herself. Preparation for her weekly calls mean looking up resources on soft skills. "Interacting one-on-one also helps me gain confidence and see if teaching is something I'm cut out for," she says.

DIGITAL DOWNSIDE

DRAINED OUT

- Block your front camera

Avoid feeling overwhelmed and manage the stress level by being more strategic at work
—Dr Girish Chandra, senior consultant, Psychiatry, Aster CMI Hospital

Vidya Iyengar

Rohit T had always thought logging into work online would be perfect solution to beating the traffic jam and the moods it brought on. What he hadn't imagined is the overdose and fatigue it would come with. "My phone is always beeping with notifications, and I find myself spending hours on video calls," says the investment banker.

Virtual communication fatigue is for real, and barely three months into this new world order where going digital is the norm, Bengalureans already seem to be exhausted. While Dr B Kapur, consultant psychiatrist, Vikram Hospital Bengaluru, was coming across about 7-10 clients complaining of this issue, the lockdown increased the numbers by three times. "Most of them are software professionals complaining of more work than they can handle. This means more video calls, emails and even recreation is social media. All this tires the brain," he says.

Health professionals who have been coming across increasing numbers of this new syndrome point to anxiety, overconsciousness, sleep deprivation and physical exhaustion. "The IT industry, school and healthcare have all moved to the virtual world to keep their business acumen in place. But there are WiFi issues, call drops during meetings, and network issues. People are overly conscious about the statement their managers make as they can't keep asking the sentences to be repeated. So there's a lot of strain," says Dr Pallavi Joshi, consultant psychiatrist, Manipal Hospital, Whitefield, who pegs the increase of this issues by 50 per cent.

In addition, employees are cautious about the background set-up of the house, the members and regular chores that are going on inside the house even as the front camera is on during meetings. "All of these take a toll," she says.

According to Dr Girish Chandra, senior consultant, Psychiatry, Aster CMI Hospital, this is a new issue that has come up during the lockdown. "Now around 30 per cent of cases that we are seeing on a regular basis are having similar problems," he says, suggesting mandatory breaks away from the workstation at regular intervals. "Talk to your family members or may be take a power nap. Avoid feeling overwhelmed by work and manage the stress level by being more strategic at work. Refresh your minds with other creative ways," he says.

Agrees Bhavin Turakhia, founder and CEO at Flock, a workplace collaboration platform, who points to 'workplace burnout', which has taken an all-new meaning. "While working from home has been a sought-after perk, we have entered a new reality of frequent online meetings and an inability to disconnect from the job. With the array of communication platforms available, employees are continuously connected virtually and this overload is draining them out," he says.

WORD OF THE DAY

COMMON KINGFISHER (ALCEDO ATTHIS)

FOUND ACROSS EURASIA AND NORTH AFRICA

The blue and orange bird's binomial name is derived from the Latin alcedo meaning 'kingfisher' in Greek and Atthis, a beautiful woman of Lesbos, a favourite of the poet Sappho. Its high, shrill call gives it away, even if the bird remains hidden. The fast-flying bird has visual adaptations that enable it to see its prey under water.

Aveti Learning's smart curriculum has now spread to 400 schools and hopes to reach more across the country. There are 120 individuals who run centres using the smart curriculum. Each of these centres have been adopted by colleagues and friends abroad, who have sponsored smart learning equipment like the Aveti Learning tablets for students. This has so far benefitted 8,000 students.

PARIVRTTA ANJANEYASANA

(REVOLVED LUNGE POSE)

In Sanskrit, 'parivrtta' means 'revolved', 'anjaneya' means 'salutation' or 'praise' and asana means 'posture' or 'pose.' This asana is an intermediate standing twist that calms the mind and lengthens the spine. Traditionally, it is believed to activate the Manipura chakra. This chakra is the body's energy and vitality centre, providing confidence, internal strength and courage. Activating the Manipura chakra through this asana is thought to dispel fear and insecurity.

STEPS

- Start with Adho Mukha Svanasana. In this pose, you are on the floor supported by your feet and the palms.
- The hips are raised up straight forming an angle with the hands and legs.
- Exhale and take your right foot forward. Bend lower to make the right knee align with the right foot.
- The left leg and knee can be on the floor giving support. Now you will feel a good stretch in the left thigh and groin.
- Inhale slowly and raise your torso up. Simultaneously, raise both your hands up above the head. The palms can touch each other in Anjali Mudra in the raised position.
- The front knee should be aligned with the ankles. Tilt your head slightly backwards and look up.
- This is the basic Anjaneyasana or the low lunge pose.
- From Anjaneyasana, turn or twist the body to the right and let the elbows rest on the right knee. The elbow can also touch the side of the knee.
- Raise the head and gaze slightly upwards and sideways.
- Remain in this position as long as you are comfortable.
- The left knee on the floor will give a better balance and one can do this pose without strain.
- Hold the breath in the final position or you can breathe slowly and normally.
- Repeat on the left side.

BENEFITS

- Beneficial for quadriceps and gluteal muscles.
- Strengthens and stretches the abdominal muscles which tones the organs in the abdomen and improves digestion.
- Improves the sense of balance.
- Reduces stress.
- Increases stamina.
- Improves concentration and confidence.

LIMITATIONS

- Those with knee, hip, spine or neck injury should avoid this.

UNLOCKING THE PAST

• Monika Monalisa

While museums and archaeological sites stay shut, there is always a way for history buffs to visit the past. National Institute of Advanced Studies (NIAS) in collaboration with Indian National Trust for Art and Cultural Heritage (INTACH) Bengaluru has come up with an online video series lecture. Called Back and Forth in Time: Lectures on South India's past, the series will conclude on June 25.

The talks speak about the past of the five South Indian states. "We tried to bring out the heritage of most of the parts of the Coromandel belt in India," says Smriti Haricharan, assistant professor, Heritage Science and Society Program School of Humanities, NIAS. Besides architecture, it also covers literature and arts. "Architecture, of course, is an important part of history, which will tell you about the topography and the engineering skills. To know the way people thought during that time or the idea behind any plan, one has to go through the manuscripts as well," says Haricharan, who has been a part of NIAS for past 10 years. For example, Gayatri Iyer, who has an MPhil in Indian Art History from Jawaharlal Nehru University (JNU), spoke about the art and architecture of Karnataka Hoysala and Chalukya era. She also mentioned the superstition that prevails, how religion and politics go hand-in-hand in many ways.

Alongside ancient history, medieval and modern history also feature in the series. Haricharan points out that the response so far has been encouraging for them. Each session sees over 100 registrations, with active audience interaction through questions posed at dignitaries. "The virtual classes have given them the advantage of having guest speakers from overseas too," says Haricharan.

Meera Iyer, who is part of INTACH Bengaluru, says the current scenario is the season of webinars. "But in all these talks on heritage, history and archaeology, there was very little of South India. There were scholars and researchers doing some excellent work on it but no real focus is on it, where the information reaches a lay person."

APOCALYPSE OR NOT, IT'S TIME FOR NEW WORLD ORDER

OPEN SPACE
Pallavi Srivastava
Editor, City Express
spallavi@newindianexpress.com

So Sunday came and went. And the world has not come to an end. Or has it? As doomsday prophecies continue to float about, with various theories taking different spots on the wide spectrum of beliefs and cheerfulness, it doesn't take long to chance upon someone on social media saying, 'Yes, the world has ended. At least, the one we knew and lived in until a few months back.' Or even, 'Let it come to an end, and fast. Who wants to live masked up and locked in for who knows how long to come'.

An elderly acquaintance had told me during a phone conversation a few weeks ago that several senior citizens are now saying that it's the Kalki avatar of Lord Vishnu that has descended upon the earth as coronavirus. Most of us may laugh off such talk, of course, but it's tough to shrug away the lingering feeling that the pandemic has indeed changed the world, even as we fervently hope for it to be an ephemeral challenge.

And this past weekend did bring about this realisation more than any other day — yes, perhaps with greater force than even the first day of lockdown. Any other time, and the day would have been marked with celebrations -- and poses — of different kinds. There would have been rows and rows of track pants-wearing people huffing together to do 108 surya namaskars early in the morning. Yoga Day rituals out of the way, many of them would have wrapped up the day in a noisy pub, shaking their aching bodies to the latest tunes to hail World Music Day. Thrown in somewhere in the middle of the afternoon, would have been a hearty dose of family bonding happening at a fancy restaurant over a special brunch to ring in Father's Day. Instagram feeds would have bubbled over, with selfies of people puffing and pouting, enjoying healthy lemonade in the morning, and rich, silky risotto and wine a few hours later.

But instead of bustling bars in Indiranagar and CBD, the occasions were celebrated with quiet introspection at home, with asanas being practised in the drawing room instead of crowded stadiums, and dreamy quotes taking the place of glittery outfits. The solar eclipse too played its part in keeping people indoors, and as if WhatsApp wasn't already brimming with exchange of Covid-banishing home remedies, we got a fresh onslaught of know-hows to ward off the ill-effects of the grahana.

For once, even many Bollywood star kids chose to lie low. Some of their names did trend on social media, but the hashtags drew attention to their family ties and 'father's influence' on their lives for a completely different reason.

There were no loud advertisements luring diners and buyers with special offers, no conspicuous consumption of, well, anything. And in that manner, not just this Sunday, but the last couple of months have quite been as if we are all playing a waiting game. Not for the world to end. But for it to begin afresh.

SHOOTING DOWN PANDEMIC BLUES

• Roshne Balasubramanian

People across the globe have been looking for new ways to battle coronavirus. In times of such crisis, artists have time and again come forward to spread positivity. Cinema Rendezvous, a not-for-profit organisation and a film club headed by Tamil actor Shylaja Chetlur, will now be hosting a 'Lock Down Short-film Contest'. They have also been hosting virtual discussions on films and story writing sessions.

"As a club, we are used to meeting at least once a month and because of that, a certain synergy has been created. So it was important for us to come up with ideas to keep members and enthusiasts engaged. After a successful session where around 12 participants got together to write character sketches, I thought the next should be a platform for people to explore the world of short filmmaking," says Chetlur, adding that her observation of people using their mobile cameras to shoot 'quarantine home videos' was the seed of thought.

After a successful session writing character sketches, I thought the next should explore the world of short filmmaking

—Shylaja Chetlur, actor

Themed 'Lockdown Love', the competition urges people to describe the one or many things that gave them solace during this period. While there is no restriction on the topic, the short film shouldn't exceed three minutes. "There's a prevailing sense of negativity and sometimes we have to tell ourselves to be happy... something as simple as looking at the mirror as you brush and thinking that you look nice today can make you feel a little better," Chetlur says. She further shares, "We will be announcing prizes in three categories — Best Short Documentary, Best Short Fiction and Specific Focus: Environment. The prize money is ₹5,000 (each)."

The contest, Chetlur says, is also a personal endeavour to connect senior citizens with the youngsters while they are together at home. "This short film contest, I think, will be a good opportunity for people and families to bond. A grandparent's story can be visually woven by a technically sound GenZ or a millennial. It will also give people a different perspective on how short films and series are made. People will perhaps understand that the visual mediums tell stories that have a more endearing value to humankind than just entertainment," she says.

Final video entries can be emailed to lockdownshortfilmcontest@gmail.com before July 1. Winners will be announced on July 8.

LOVEOLOGY
Mahesh Natarajan

Out of the shadows

Earlier this week, along with the summer solstice, we saw a solar eclipse. While many did get the chance to witness the spectacular celestial event, some of us, thanks to the monsoon clouds, experienced a darkening of the skies, and with it, maybe hoped for more rain but just got disappointed as the clouds lightened up again without the slightest bit of precipitation when the moon moved on and didn't obstruct the sun any more.

It is a pretty regular feature and yet there is much apprehension, superstition and fear over it. In religious homes, there are prayers, fasting and rituals to overcome the negative energy attributed to such events. Mythology has us believing that copulation under such an influence is a strict no-no and children born out of such conceptions, or under such circumstances, might just be different, and not in a socially accepted way. We are advised by believers to stay indoors, stay quiet and wait for it to pass, and when it is over, to then have a bath, give thanks for things being ok and get on with life.

In love and relationships, every now and then, something comes up that eclipses our here-and-now experience of being connected on an ongoing manner. Many of these are recurring events, anniversaries and remembrances of events past, such as birthdays of an enormously impactful relationship in the past, or maybe anniversary of the death of a previously beloved, and sometimes, it is are-occurrence of something, like an annual summer visit of parents or a trip one has to endure without much of a choice.

When it occurs, it can be like the sun suddenly disappeared from your life for a bit – everything seemed like a general day in your life, you were all just being warm and friendly and it becomes dark and foreboding. You may not really know what it is and just miss the warm, happy times you had just experienced, and in missing those times, you might get angry, upset and even scared.

The anxiety caused by the sudden change in your loved one can be very unsettling. It is so hard to let it be and just wait for the person to turn back. We want to feel like we have power, and might try desperate things to get our love to shine back, but like with a regular solar eclipse, they may really have no impact at all in the private process that your loved one is going through at that moment.

For a solar eclipse, even when we know what it is rationally, we might still do superstitious things, as if our efforts are what makes the sun shine again. When something celestial triggers that action even in a generally rational person, is it any surprise that for any eclipse in more personal spaces, we panic? We really stop only when we fully understand and can accept it with clarity.

PAVAN WADEYAR TO USE 360-DEGREE GRAPHIC TECHNOLOGY FOR RAYMO SONGS

A still from Raymo

Dropping the initial plan of shooting two songs in Himalayas and Rajasthan, respectively, makers are looking for plan B and are in discussions with various graphic companies; musical love drama directed by Pavan Wadeyar stars Ishan and Ashika Ranganath in the lead

• A Sharadhaa

The team of director Pavan Wadeyar's upcoming directorial, Raymo, for which they are left with two songs and a fight sequence to shoot, is hoping to resume shooting from July 15. They had initially planned to shoot the two tracks in the Himalayas and Rajasthan, respectively, which has now become a challenge. Shooting at these exotic destinations seems to be a faraway thought currently, and the pandemic has pushed the makers of the musical love drama starring Ishan and Ashika Ranganath to look for Plan B. Pavan Wadeyar, dance choreographer Imran Sardhariya and cinematographer Vaidy are busy holding meetings and working towards presenting the two tracks with 360-degree graphic technology.

"With the government permitting resumption of shoots with limited cast and crew, we now have to put our brains to work. For the introduction song alone, I need at least 1,000 junior artistes to be part of the sequences, and it will now be a nightmare. We have started thinking in the reverse way — of having just 10 junior artistes, who come and go with different costumes at different places. We will multiply them into thousands through 3D technology," says Pavan Wadeyar. "It will cost a bomb to get the graphics, but our producer (C R Manohar) has given a green signal to complete the songs using this format," he adds.

The director has approached three graphic companies — Unifi media in Bengaluru and two other companies in Mumbai and Chennai, respectively. "We are going to share the work with these companies so that it gets completed as early as possible," says Pavan Wadeyar, who also revealed that the two tracks will initially be shot at Talakad. "We have chosen this location because we will get a wider space. We will be capturing the scenes in the desert patches by putting up some realistic sets, and later we will merge the scenes with the use of technology," says the director.

Raymo will feature the lead actors as musicians who are part of a band. It has been shot in foreign locations like Thailand, Malaysia, South Africa and Singapore. The film also includes senior actors Madhoo and Sarathkumar playing prominent roles along with Achyuth Kumar and Rajesh Nataranga as part of the cast. Raymo has Pavan Wadeyar joining hands with music composer Arjun Janya for the first time, and has well-known singers like Arijit Singh, Shreya Ghoshal, Armaan Malik, Sanjith Hegde, Sid Sriram, and Indu Nagaraj lending voices to various tracks.

It's a whole new experience: Rachita Ram from the sets of Super Machi

Rachita Ram

The actor, who is making her Telugu film debut opposite Kalyan Dev, says the production house is taking precautionary measures for a safe shooting process

• CE Features

Social distancing, sanitisation tunnel, ginger water, turmeric milk, masks, gloves, limited cast and crew... shooting post lockdown has been a whole new experience for Rachita Ram, who traveled by road to Andhra Pradesh, and is currently at Ramnanaidu studio on the sets of her Telugu debut, Super Machi. The family entertainer, directed by Puli Vasu and bankrolled by Rizwan Entertainments, has the Bulbul heroine sharing space with Tollywood hero Kalyan Dev.

According to Rachita, the set is more like a space station with most of the crew in headgears, masks, and gloves. "It is a 10-day schedule, and we have begun shooting from today. I see a lot of extra precautionary measures right from the five-star hotel where I am put up. Every technician and cast is provided with a medical kit.

On the sets of Super Machi

The team is maintaining transparency with the Film Chamber and has made it a point to send them stills and videos from the film sets. The crew present is limited to 20 people and very few artistes," says Rachita Ram, who preferred to travel with a three member staff by road.

Ask the actor whether she finds it risky shooting under the pandemic fear, and she says, "There is pandemic on one side, but there are producers who have made huge investments on their respective projects. As an actor, I felt it is not good to put them at risk. Moreover, every individual here is taking precautionary measures. Each one understands the value of their lives," she says.

The actor, who will be returning after 12 days, will be in self-isolation for 7 to 14 days after which she plans to start shooting for her Kannada film, April. The film, directed by Sathya Rayala and bankrolled by Narayan Babu, will have Sachin Basrur making his debut as music director. It also has Arjun Shetty and Pratheek Shetty taking care of the camerawork and editing, respectively.

Meanwhile, the team is also looking for an actor who can replace Chiranjeevi Sarja. The latter, who was finalised to play the lead along with Rachita Ram in the commercial thriller, was even part of the film's launch. However, with the actor's demise, the team is now in the process of making changes to the cast and the film's narrative.

A solid and gritty new season that outdoes old ones

• Kirubhakar Purushothaman

It is said that The Sinner was initially conceived as a close-ended series based on German writer Petra Hammesfahr's book of the same name. However, the complexity of Detective Harry Ambrose (Bill Pullman) has made the creators explore more with series, and rightly so. The third season, titled Jamie is about a high school teacher Jamie Burns (Matt Bomer), and I am tempted to say that it is the best of the three seasons of The Sinner.

This high school history teacher from Dorchester, a New York suburb, is charming, sleek, and one of his students says that almost all the girls in the school have a crush on him. He is married to an African-American woman, Leela, and they are expecting their first child in weeks. But everything is not as rosy as it seems with Jamie. He is tempted to burn his hand on the searing barbecue grill as he cooks a romantic dinner for his wife. Even the very first scene of the series has him vaping cannabis in the school restroom.

We feel the dam is ready to break and it does when his friend, Nick Haas (Chris Messina) makes a surprise visit to his house. Later that night, Nick and Jamie meet with a car accident which turns fatal for the former, while the school teacher escapes with minor injuries. It doesn't take a lot for our detective Ambrose to prove that it was not an accident but a crime. From then on The Sinner season 3 dives into the dark world of Jamie and Nick. However, by the end of the season it becomes apparent that the world of Ambrose is much darker.

One of the interesting aspects of The Sinner series is it's more of the 'why' than the 'how' and 'who' of the crime. In the season 3, there is also suspense of 'what' has happened, and that makes this a bit more fresh than the other two seasons.

The Sinner Season 3

Developed by: Derek Simonds
Cast: Bill Pullman, Matt Bomer, Jessica Hecht
Streaming on: Netflix
RATING ★★★★½ 3.5/5

Season 3 kept reminding me of the British series, The Fall, and I mean that in a good way. Both series have a family man from a suburb, whose acts are driven by ideologies. Both keep manipulating an underage girl, they talk about Nietzsche and think they are above everyone else. But the more eerie similarity between The Sinner and The Fall is the way the two series show how their killers are similar to their detectives. A character in The Sinner notes that Ambrose and Jamie even look similar. This constant meddling with morality and constructs of good and bad makes the show dense.

The third season also works brilliantly because of Bill Pullman and the amazing new cast. Matt Bomer, with his ever-dilated pupils, sells the complexity of Jamie effortlessly; he just makes it look so easy. Even the casting of characters like Sonya Barzel (Jessica Hecht) and Nick Hauss (Chris Messina) is done with much deliberation and the pay off is huge.

But, of course, Bill Pullman steals the show yet again with his hesitant and wavering look. With every new season, the writers have made his character darker and it looks like he is a bottomless pit of despair and guilt. The last scene of the series is outright heartbreaking as Ambrose finally reveals his vulnerable side, and it is heartening to see that the detective finally has Sonya's shoulder to lean on. The series has been renewed for a fourth season and it makes us wonder if Ambrose will find solace in Sonya's shoulder for a bit more. With this guy, you never know.
